Fate of Tocks dam, 209 still in Congress' hands

By MARK BROWN
Ottawa News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — More than a month after the Delaware River Basin Commission (DRBC) recommended against building the Tocks Island Dam, two major questions remain unanswered:

— Will Congress deauthorize the controversial project?

— What will happen to the $4.5 million voted by the House to start building a new Rte. 209 this year?

Unfortunately, a series of interviews with key congressmen Monday showed that no one can answer these questions with authority until they learn the contents of a single letter being written by the Secretary of the Army.

This letter, which will represent the Army Corps of Engineers' final position on Tocks, was due in Congress a week ago but never arrived. Phone calls to the Corps indicate that the letter probably has not been drafted yet, but should be sent to Congress within a week.

Although the congressmen protested against speculation, they seemed inclined to think the Secretary of the Army will ask Congress to deauthorize the dam.

If that happens, they believe Congress will comply with the request before the end of the year, and the 209 funds will automatically die with the dam.

The reason, they say, is that Congress has virtually ordered the Corps to take a definitive up or down position on Tocks this year. The strong show of nonsupport by the DRBC makes deauthorization the only clear stand the army secretary could take.

Moreover, the division engineer directly in charge of Tocks favors deauthorization, and he feels the recent waffling by three of the four governors reinforces this view even further. Rep. Robert E. Jones, D-Ala., who chairs the House Public Works Committee, said his panel will vote on deauthorization of Tocks before the end of this year — if that is what the army secretary recommends in his letter.

He stressed that only the secretary, and not an individual member of Congress, can launch deauthorization proceedings before his committee. "I have no idea what the secretary may recommend," he stated.

Rep. Joe L. Evins, D-Tenn., chairman of the Public Works Appropriations Subcommittee, said there is no way Congress would approve construction funds this year, even if the dam escapes deauthorization.

He said he is willing to support the $4.5 million already approved for Rte. 209 relocation as long as Tocks Island is still on the books, but deauthorization could force him to withdraw his support.

(A legal counsel on Evins' staff offered the opinion that everything will stop if Tocks is deauthorized, including land acquisition and the work on Rte. 209).

Rep. Joseph M. McDade, R-Scranton, has been frantically seeking a middle ground this week which would not undue all the work that went into securing the $4.5 million for Rte. 209.

"I think we're in a very uphill position right now," McDade said, based on conversations he had with the members of the Senate Appropriations Committee. "I can see us losing the 209 funds and losing a lot of time."

McDade said it would have been tough to gain Senate approval of the 209 funds even if the question of deauthorization had not arisen. "This level of obstacles magnifies the complexity of the problem tenfold," he declared.

Shapp forces propose new laws

Driving in Pa. could get expensive

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Shapp administration Monday unveiled legislation that would make major changes in Pennsylvania's traffic laws and could drastically increase the cost of buying and operating motor vehicles.

It is destined to become one of the most controversial measures the legislature has considered in years because it deals with topics that nearly everyone understands: money and motor vehicles.

The proposed revision of the Motor Vehicle Code would liberalize the point system, increase fines and make it easier for the police to arrest speeders and drunk drivers.

Also proposed are increases in the gasoline tax, registration and drivers' license fees and imposition of a new three per cent excise tax on new vehicles.

The bill, which the administration has been working on for two years, was presented at a joint meeting of the House and Senate transportation committees.

The portion of the proposal that deals with fees and taxes was not released Monday.

Rep. Joseph Bonetto, D-Allegheny, and Sen. Frank Lynch, D-Philadelphia, chairmen of the transportation committees, said the following possibilities are being considered:

— a three per cent excise tax on all new automobile sales but no increase in basic registration fees. This would be in addition to the present six per cent sales tax.

A person buying a new car for $4,000 would pay $360 in state taxes instead of the $240 he would pay today.

— eliminate present registration fees and impose new fees at a rate of one-half of one per cent of the cost of a vehicle with a basic minimum of $20. The fee would be $20 for a $4,000 vehicle or $50 for a $10,000 vehicle.

— impose registration fees by weight with charges ranging from $20 for vehicles less than 3,500 pounds to $35 for vehicles of more than 4,500 pounds.

— increase the registration fee from $14 to $24 a year but partially make up for it by requiring inspections only once a year instead of twice.

The lawmakers said the Transportation Department needs an additional $225 million a year for road maintenance and repairs.

Bank pays $1.3 million for hostages

PARIS (UPI) — Two gunmen held up a Paris bank Monday, seized seven hostages, and escaped into the night in a getaway car provided by police with three women hostages and $1.36 million ransom.

The bandits released all seven of their hostages — four of them before they made their getaway and the three last women hostages within the following two hours.

All three women hostages were recovered unharmed but in varying states of shock. Police sources said one was found sobbing alone in the getaway car and the other two were found an hour later chained to a second car the bandits used.

There was no trace of the robbers.

Battle of Bunker Hill relived by busing foes

BOSTON (UPI) — Rock throwing crowds of whites clashed with riot-trained police below historic Bunker Hill in Charlestown Monday on the opening of the second year of court-ordered school busing.

Roving bands of whites also broke into a college lobby, vandalizing furniture and attacking a black college student.

In outbreaks in at least two racially tense areas of the city, two blacks — including a news reporter — were injured, and 80 persons were arrested on disorderly conduct charges.

No trouble was reported inside any schools.

Among those arrested were 74 protesting demonstrators hauled out of a bus and vans by police a few blocks from South Boston High School.

Despite the confrontations, city officials appeared relieved violence was kept to a minimum.

"The opening day of school this year was better than last year and better than a lot of people expected," said Peter Meade, an aide speaking for Mayor Kevin H. White.

School officials said 58.9 per cent of the students enrolled attended classes. This included 60.3 per cent in high schools, 59.2 at middle schools and 57.8 in elementary schools.

Some 75,000 students were scheduled to return to class Monday. There was no indication whether the drop in attendance was due to a widespread boycott, or to parents keeping their children home out of concern from their safety.

Yellow school buses provided with police motorcycle escort and with a police helicopter hovering above, took black children to and from school without incident.

Both major disturbances occurred in Charlestown, one about noon, and the second as buses left the area at the end of classes.

Late in the day, crowds of youths overturned two small cars near Bunker Hill and set one car afire. Later, a band of roving youths stormed the lobby of Bunker Hill Community College and assaulted a black student — Harvey Fisher, 19, of Cambridge, Mass. — breaking his arm, according to college president Harold Shibley. An unidentified girl student suffered a cut hand.

Shibley said the youths barged into the college lobby, vandalized the area, knocked over chairs and tables and threw around ashtrays.

In South Boston, black reporter Michael Alexander, 32, of Newsday was assaulted by five unidentified white men on Broadway. Officials said he declined hospital treatment. The windshield of his car was broken.

The 74 arrested in South Boston, who identified themselves as members of the Progressive Labor party, were arraigned in South Boston District Court.

New York City's teachers on strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thousands of New York City public school teachers roared their approval to strike at midnight Monday night, closing the nation's largest school system and putting 1.1 million children out of classrooms.

"Salary is not the issue," United Federation of Teachers President Albert Shanker said in a speech prior to the strike vote in Madison Square Garden which cast a crescendo of "ayes" to the union's recommendation to walk out.

"The issue is conditions in the schools," Shanker said. "They are a danger both to the babies and the babysitters and that we will not go for."

Shanker's speech was punctuated with standing ovations from the teachers who filled the 20,000-seat arena.

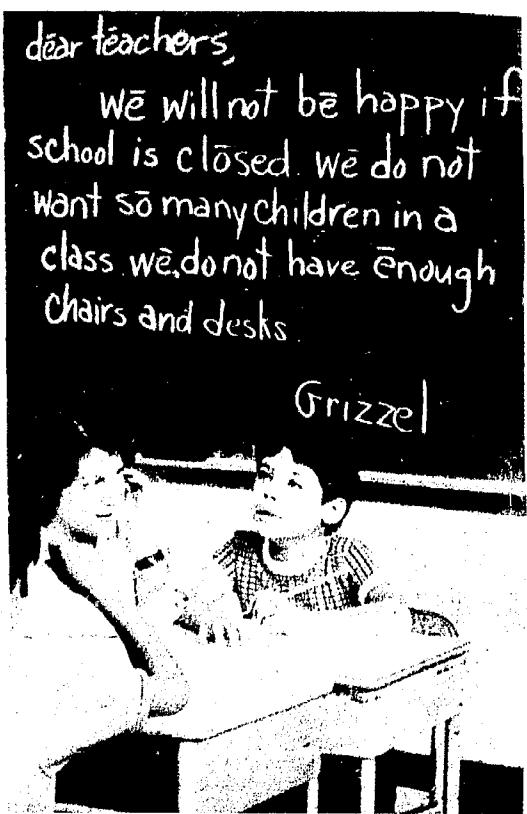

As the vote was taken, thousands of other teachers unable to gain entrance crowded the sidewalks surrounding the garden, some of them waving picket signs which had been prepared last week.

Shanker said the 80,000-member union rejected a proposal by the Board of Education to extend the strike deadline 30 days. He said this was done because teachers, reporting for work Monday found that the old contract already had been violated.

"They found schools without guards, without guidance counselors and kids sitting on book cases," Shanker said. "This is something we could not tolerate."

The rank-and-file vote was the final step in the process that will set up teacher picket lines at the city's 950 public schools which serve 1.1 million students.

At an earlier meeting Monday evening of the union's Delegate Assembly, Shanker said, "We made every effort to reach an agreement. We didn't want a strike and we don't now."

KIDS' APPEAL — Second graders at P.S. 64 on New York's lower East Side get help from their teacher, Madelyn Billing, Monday to write a letter to the principal urging teachers to settle their contract dispute and return to the classroom Tuesday. It didn't work. (UPI)

However, Shanker said "the other side came in with a bag full of demands that would have taken away everything we've got."

"It will be the same tomorrow if we go back," he said.

The strike vote came after tense negotiations at which the Board of Education and UFT President Albert Shanker reportedly tried to reach an agreement on a 30-day extension of the strike deadline.

However, the attempted agreement fell through because the board lacked the estimated $30 million it would have taken to pay the teachers through the next month under the old contract, sources said.

Kissinger urges Congress to okay Mideast monitors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told Congress Monday that no more than 200 American civilians would be used to man electronic surveillance equipment in the Sinai under the agreement he helped negotiate between Israel and Egypt.

Appealing for congressional approval of the plan in testimony before the House International Relations Committee, Kissinger said the monitors would be stationed at only two sites — Mitla and Gidi passes — and because they would operate around the clock, only 75 would be on duty at one time.

"The American presence is confined to these two primary passes," Kissinger testified. "Their total number cannot exceed 200, which means that in three shifts the number on duty cannot exceed 75."

"The Americans have no military functions whatever," he said. "They are civilian volunteers. They are not there to bring victory for one side or the other."

Rather, he said, the U.S. technicians would be analogous to the U.N. peacekeeping force which would separate the Egyptian and Israeli forces in the buffer zone. Kissinger also reminded the committee that if the safety of the Americans were jeopardized, President Ford has said he would call them home.

Kissinger said the United States did not volunteer to supply the monitors but reluctantly agreed after Egypt and Israel refused to permit nationals from the other country to monitor the two passes.

"We therefore reluctantly agreed to this urgent request of both parties," he said.

As he left the committee room after giving additional testimony in closed session, Kissinger said it was his impression that the committee and the administration felt the same way about the plan to commit the Americans — "that none of us was eager to propose an American presence, but realize that it was the only way to get an agreement."

Responding to allegations that the United States had "bought" the agreement by promising to give Israel massive military and economic aid, Kissinger said Israel had originally requested an aid package amounting to $2.5 billion, and later to $3.3 billion. He said this was not connected to any agreement.

Last year, Kissinger said, the United States gave Israel aid amounting to almost $3 billion.

Heller's extortion trial scheduled for Thursday

WILKES-BARRE — Former Monroe County Pennsylvania Department of Transportation (PennDOT) Superintendent William F. Heller goes to trial Thursday on extortion and perjury charges.

The trial, before U.S. Middle District Chief Judge Michael H. Sheridan, will be held in the U.S. Courthouse in Wilkes-Barre beginning at 10 a.m.

Heller is accused of demanding kickbacks for snow plowing contracts from Monroe County contractors in 1973 and of lying to a grand jury investigating the alleged kickback scheme.

The trial had been postponed from July 1 due to Heller's health. He resigned July 9 from the $17,685 post he had occupied since 1971.

Specific charges against Heller allege he extorted $400 from Darwin Keiper and $300 from Robert Selig Jr., both Pocono Lake contractors who do snow removal for PennDOT.

The perjury charge stems from testimony Heller gave the grand jury denying he solicited money or told someone else to solicit money from East Stroudsburg contractor Fred Focke.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Sal Cognetti Jr. said Monday the trial "should take a day or two." Heller is free on his own recognizance.

Trenton water crisis eases

TRENTON, N.J. — Mayor Arthur J. Holland lifted a ban on the use of water for industrial and commercial use Monday while city officials called on Trenton area residents to conserve water because the shortage was "still critical." School officials in Trenton and neighboring communities said classes would be opened today. Most of them were closed Monday because of the water shortage. A spokesman for the Water Works Department said Holland lifted the ban because of concern about the crippling impact of the shortage on business and industry in the area. He said the lifting of the ban would go into effect at 12:01 a.m. today.

Sweeney contests election

PITTSBURGH — Former state Rep. Leonard Sweeney said Monday he would file suit to block the special election set for Nov. 4 to fill his seat in the Pennsylvania House. Sweeney, 32, was expelled from the House on Aug. 22 by a vote of 176-1 because he was convicted of mail fraud by a federal jury for his role in a phony accident ring. In an interview on WTAE-TV, the Pittsburgh Democrat said he would file the suit in Commonwealth Court seeking an injunction against the state Elections Bureau from holding the election. "We want to enjoin the election and reverse the expulsion on the grounds that it is unconstitutional, illegal and deprives the people of the 17th District of the representative they elected," Sweeney said.

Rough dancing partner

TRENTON, N.J. — A 53-year-old man shot and killed a woman he had been dating after she refused to dance with him at a singles party, police said. Police said Michael M. Fasullo of Trenton fired three shots and killed Mary Ann Yannuzziello, 40, of Hamilton Township in the parking lot of the Nottingham Volunteer Fire Co. about 10:40 p.m. Sunday. Witnesses told police Fasullo repeatedly had asked the woman to dance, but she kept turning him down. The woman finally left the dance, and Fasullo followed her outside. Dance-goers heard a series of gunshots and ran outside to find the woman lying in a pool of blood in the parking lot. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Hamilton Hospital.

Spassky loses love match

MOSCOW — Chess master Boris Spassky, who lost his world title to Bobby Fischer in 1972, apparently was fighting another losing battle Monday, this one against Soviet officialdom for the right to marry a beautiful French secretary. Authorities said Miss Marina Sitcherbatheff must leave the country as soon as she finishes her job with the French commercial mission Sept. 30. And the Moscow wedding palace has said, sorry, but it cannot accommodate the wedding before Nov. 11.

Home canners disappointed

SOMERSET, Pa. — The American Services Corp. Monday completed a sale of 200,000 canning lids, but many persons who had ordered and paid in advance were disappointed when their orders were not filled. Others apparently left with more lids than they had ordered and paid for, company officials said. The company said it would refund payments to those whose orders it could not meet. Company officials said a lack of volunteer help caused a collapse in record-keeping during the sale, which began last weekend. They said customers during the weekend had been allowed to count their own lids.

Bank robbers change minds

MILAN, Italy — Two armed bandits seized 17 hostages in a Milan bank Monday and threatened to execute them one by one unless they were paid a $300,000 ransom. But they released their captives unharmed and surrendered after eight hours. The two men wearing masks burst into the bank shortly after 9 a.m. and demanded $300,000, but were told the vaults did not contain that much cash. They then rounded up seven bank employees and 10 customers and demanded the same amount in ransom. Otherwise, they said, they would kill the hostages one by one.

N.J. tries again on casinos

TRENTON, N.J. — A bill which would ask voters whether they want casino gambling in Atlantic City, a measure defeated at the polls last year, was introduced Monday in the New Jersey Assembly. The bill is sponsored by Assemblymen Steven P. Perskie and Charles D. Worthington, both Democrats from Atlantic County. If it passes, they hope to have it on the ballot in November of 1976. Perskie said the measure calls for a referendum on whether New Jerseyans want casino gambling specifically in Atlantic City. He said he felt its chances for passage are good because unlike last year's referendum question there are specific limitations.

Portuguese leaders get tough

LISBON, Portugal — Portugal's military rulers clamped down on the national press, radio and television Monday with a tough law forbidding reports on military matters based on anything but official sources of information. A communique issued by the key revolutionary council blamed the press for aggravating the political crisis saying it had not carried out "its important role" properly and had "excited and confused" the people. The Revolutionary Council meeting under President Francisco da Costa Gomes threatened to impose suspensions of up to 10 days on information media appearing daily and of up to 40 days on media appearing weekly for failure to comply with the law.

Admit hitch to reaching them

House Republicans unveil goals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republicans Monday unveiled a program of legislative goals they acknowledged can only be achieved if they wrest control of Congress from the Democrats next year.

The broad-based program, seven months in the drafting, sets only general goals for such things as tax and welfare reform, national health insurance, job training and "automatic" unemployment benefits. Details are to be worked out by task forces.

House Republican leader John Rhodes said President Ford approved the program despite early concern by some White House aides that it might be interpreted as a split with the President.

"The days of presidential coat tails are gone, gone forever," Rhodes told a news conference. "If House Republicans ever expect to become the majority in Congress, it's up to us to tell our own story."

"Democrats have controlled Congress for 38 of the past 42 years," said Rhodes. "We've been doing something wrong. It's not enough to say what we're against. We must say what we are for. The miserable record of this Congress must be brought to the attention of the people."

One specific goal of the GOP program is to end deficit spending within three years, meaning a balanced budget each year coupled with a "systematic reduction" of the nearly half-trillion-dollar national debt.

Other items are: — Make any crime committed with a firearm a federal HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Pennsylvania Transportation Department has one eye on the weather and one eye on its bank account — hoping there will be enough money to handle snow removal this winter.

Transportation Secretary Jacob Kassab said Monday the department should not have much trouble if it is a mild winter, but snow removal may have to be curtailed because of budget shortages if weather is severe.

According to Kassab, the shortages are caused by the growing debt payment on the state's current highway system along with general inflation of costs for highway repairs and operation of the state police.

Will press for sizable increase

Iran wants oil price hike

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi indicated Monday that Iran would press for sizable price increases at a meeting of oil producers later this month and warned the West not to resort to "gunboat diplomacy" to keep prices down.

In an address to a joint session of the Iranian parliament, the Shah said Iran's demand for the increases to offset inflation running at 27 per cent in some industrialized countries was "reasonable and legitimate."

"It is a perfectly logical move to revise oil prices (upwards), as it has a direct relation with the unstable economic situation in the industrialized world," he said.

The Shah said Iran's moves toward this end were "reasonable and legitimate" in view of the increased cost to oil producers of imports from industrialized countries where inflation was running "in certain cases up to 27 per cent."

He said the industrialized nations' inflation "has been exported" and therefore oil-producing countries had a right to show "some reaction of their own."

"Such reaction could not be stopped by gunboat diplomacy, which is a thing of the past," he said. "These problems should be resolved by realistic negotiation and understanding. Iran will always support such reasonable moves, but will never abandon its legitimate rights."

The oil producers will take up the question of boosting prices at a ministers' conference of the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries in Vienna beginning Sept. 24.

Postal Service seeks doubling of subsidy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar, expressing fear that climbing postage rates may hamper the flow of ideas and information, asked Congress Friday to double its $920 million subsidy to the Postal Service.

Bailar told the opening session of a three-day national postal forum that inflation has eaten away the effectiveness of the annual subsidy, voted by Congress in 1970 when the new semi-independent Postal Service was being created.

He predicted there will be heavy pressure for additional postal rate increases beyond those due to go in effect after Christmas, including an increase from 10 cents to 13 in the cost of sending a first-class letter.

This probability, Bailar said, has "raised justifiable concern lest the price of postage rise beyond the reach of some Americans and impede the free flow of ideas and information."

Bailar also announced that the Postal Service plans to invite public comment, complaints and requests for information by distributing form cards through all post offices and letter carriers.

He said a carbon copy of each card will go to the local postmaster, who must fill out a form on the back informing national headquarters what action has been taken on each one.

The subsidy to the Postal Service was designed in part to allow delays in the increase of certain postal rates, such as those for magazines, to ease planners are overemphasizing the importance of the department's 12-year highway construction proposal to the federal government, which was cut by $2 billion back to $1.9 billion earlier this year.

"In essence, this 12-year plan is basically a paperwork thing that we have to do to get federal funding," Kassab said. "We tried to predict what's going to happen over the next dozen years. Everyone knows in this day and age you cannot predict accurately for more than a year."

County planning boards and contractors protested the cutback, claiming it will mean fewer new highways for Pennsylvania.

Schweiker asks Senate to reopen JFK murder

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Richard S. Schweiker said Monday he is asking the Senate to reinvestigate the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy because Lee Harvey Oswald and Jack Ruby may have had CIA and FBI connections.

New evidence, the Pennsylvania Republican told reporters, shows possible connections between the Central Intelligence Agency and the FBI with Oswald, who was accused of shooting Kennedy with a rifle in Dallas, and Ruby, the nightclub owner, who killed Oswald.

Schweiker, a member of the 11-man Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, asked in a resolution to be presented to the Senate that National Archive documents on the assassination, ordered sealed for 75 years, be opened; that funds be allocated for a new investigation; that if necessary the panel's mandate be extended beyond Jan. 31, 1976, until the assassination is further clarified.

Schweiker said the investigation should "focus initially on the role of U.S. intelligence agencies in investigating the assassination for the Warren Commission," which reported there was no conspiracy when Oswald shot Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, and that Ruby killed Oswald on his own volition.

Schweiker said Ruby was an FBI informer, according to a letter Hoover himself wrote. "Recent disclosures have devastated the credibility of the Warren Commission report," Warren Commission.

West End plays host to coon dog field competition

By MAUREEN RUFÉ

Pocono Record Reporter

HAMILTON SQUARE — Eagerly awaiting the drop of a red velvet covered soda can that would signal the start of the mile sprint, a young brown-haired beauty eyed the competition ferociously and tensed with excitement about the upcoming race.

A tiny mint green scarf tied tightly around her ears so that the corn stalks in the West End field ahead wouldn't tickle them, the runner let out a yelp of excitement along with her nine competitors as the race began.

In a mere three minutes, the runner with the mint green scarf came under the finish wire first. If it sounds impossible for any sprinter to run the mile in three minutes, you're right, unless the competitor happens to be an experienced coon dog.

The green scarved beauty that won one of the afternoon heats at the Blue-Ridge-Cherry Valley Rod and Gun Club Sunday afternoon was just one of more than 200 dogs and 500 visitors from states ranging from Maine to South Carolina who attended the third annual Labor Day actually held Sept. 7 coon dog field trials in Hamilton Township.

The dogs, some of whom were worth in excess of $10,000 began arriving at the local gun club on Saturday evening, following other field trial competition during the weekend.

Every 15 to 20 minutes, 10 dogs were taken to a start line in a nearby field and raced a mile back to the gun club to see which competitor would come in first under a special line set up 75 feet from the finish. The first and second place dogs under the wire got an opportunity to compete in the final races at the end of the day.

In addition, the first and second dogs to bark at a tree at the finish point, also received prizes and were allowed to compete in the finals. Dangling from the tree in a tiny box was a racoon.

Riding in intricate special trailers that might contain up to 6 dogs, the competitors were experienced runners. They strained and pulled on the leashes of their owners, yapping wildly at the excitement of the race they were about to begin. The artificial coon scent that, was laid down on the mile-long track before each race, nearly drove some of the specially trained animals into a frenzy before the race began.

Green dogs — dogs that had never won a final race, junior dogs — ones that never won over $100, and senior dogs — dogs that won over $100 — competed in different classes throughout the afternoon with re-entry classes run late in the day for dogs that lost in earlier races.

Special claiming races were also run. If the dog was entered and a claim was put against the dog, the owner either had to sell the dog at the end of the race or forfeit the prize money the dog had won.

Although some dogs can be valued at more than $20,000 and some races pay off first prizes of $3,200 or more, the local event, sponsored by the Connetquot, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania Coon Hound Association, paid off prizes of $150 in the various races.

According to Larry Smeltz, president of the Pocono Cooners and chairman of the trials on Sunday, some of the high caliber dogs do nothing but travel throughout the country competing in various races, in the same way that thorough bred horses do. He said the unique event attracted a large number of spectators Sunday who had never seen a coon race before.

"This is really something to see," said Smeltz, "A good dog can earn an owner up to $10,000 a year and some owners train 10 to 12 dogs at a time."

Although there were several local competitors in the events there were no local winners.

Greene Twp. residents still without junkyard law

By RUTH VINCE

Pocono Record Reporter

GREENTOWN — Greene Township residents are still without a junkyard ordinance even though a proposed law was submitted to supervisors by the local planning commission in December of last year.

Supervisors turned the proposal over to their solicitor for review and have not received any reply to date.

Terry Mulrooney, township secretary, said he has written three letters and has called the solicitor's office but has not received any satisfaction as to when the proposed ordinance will be returned to supervisors for action.

In another matter, supervisors hired Donald Nicholson as township sewerage enforcement officer rather than contract him independently.

Nicholson's salary will be $110 per week plus 12 cents per mile until the end of the year when a yearly salary will be determined.

Nicholson requested that he be hired as a township employee in order to receive benefits afforded other employees.

He also requested a salary that would allow him to financially continue his duties. He stated being compensated under the fee system was not adequate to cover all expenses.

Action on the township's contribution toward a school crossing guard at the Newfoundland Elementary School was tabled until October.

Several months ago the matter was discussed because the neighboring township of Dreher had agreed to split the cost with the Wallenpaupack School District. Greene had been requested to do the same.

The cost for a guard would be $4 per day with each township contributing $1 a day and the school board $2.

John Price, supervisor, has maintained this is not the township's problem since students from Greene attending the school in Newfoundland are bused and taken directly into the school grounds.

Russell VanBuskirk Jr., chairman of the board, is in favor of the guard. Marvin Akers, the third member of the board, was out of town and not present at this month's meeting. Action was tabled until his return.

In other matters, two bills submitted to the board for approval were rejected by Price.

Bills rejected were $25 monthly rent on the secretary's office and a $44.15 telephone bill for that office.

Price feels these are unnecessary expenses since "the secretary doesn't need the office or phone."

Price feels Mulrooney should operate out of his home. Mulrooney, who lives with his mother, feels having the phone there is an imposition.

It is expected a special meeting will have to be held after the return of Akers in order to resolve the matter.

Discussion was held on the start of excavation for the proposed municipal building.

VanBuskirk said he was in favor of using local forces for the work. Price maintained it should be contracted. That issue was also tabled until a later date.

Real estate courses scheduled

EAST STROUDSBURG — Two real estate courses for persons preparing to take their Pennsylvania brokers' examination will be conducted by Penn State University this fall at East Stroudsburg Junior-Senior High School.

The courses, which are sponsored by Penn State's Allentown Center, are offered as part of a ten-course professional study program. Registration will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. today at the high school. Persons must present Social Security numbers when registering.

"Real Estate Theory and Practice" is a basic course for those interested in entering the real estate field as salesmen or brokers. It will cover the fundamentals of real estate law, conveyancing, terminology, practice and procedures.

"Real Estate Sales" is a review of the methods of securing property listings and selling prospective purchasers. Advertising, listing and property showing will be included in the course.

Classes will meet on Thursday evenings for 15 weeks, beginning the week of September 29.

The theory course will be held from 6:45 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., while the sales course will meet from 8:35 to 10:20 p.m.

Each course will give students two credit units toward the educational requirements that must be met before admission to the state real estate license examination.

Eight additional real estate courses will be conducted at Penn State's center, 725 Ridge Avenue, Allentown. Further information can be obtained by calling the center, (215) 433-0174.

Army units to train at TAD during winter

TOBYHANNA — While the annual two-week summer encampments for civilian soldiers at Tobyhanna has ended for another year, the area military base is gearing for another program involving Reserve and National Guard Troops, the Inactive Duty Training Program (IDT).

IDT gives these troops a chance to move out of armories and centers into realistic mission situations and work directly with equipment their units normally support.

Training will be conducted at Tobyhanna on weekends from September through April.

According to Frank Regan of Tobyhanna, the depot's plans and training officer, 17 units from five states, including Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, New York and Massachusetts, are scheduled to participate in the depot program. Another unit from Connecticut has indicated that it is interested in participating.

Regan estimates that when the IDT concludes in late April, over 4,000 Reserve and National Guard troops will have utilized the installation for the weekend training.

The Inactive Duty Training Program currently is in its third year at Tobyhanna. The depot pioneered the training concept within the Army Material Command.

Depot to build housing

TOBYHANNA — Private contractors from around the country will converge on Tobyhanna Army Depot Sept. 9 to view the proposed construction site of a family housing complex for enlisted military personnel.

Plans call for construction of 40 two-story duplexes and townhouses, including 26 three-bedroom and 14 four-bedroom units, with "tot lots" or playgrounds for pre-school age children.

At present, only bachelor quarters exist on post for enlisted and commissioned personnel, including 250-bed Summer barracks.

Advance notice of the "pre-proposal" conference at Tobyhanna was given by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Just last weekend, an IDT planning meeting was conducted at Tobyhanna and about 50 representatives attended. Included were commanders of the various units slated to train at the depot, representatives from the Department of the Army, Army Material Command, Readiness Regions 1, 2 and 3, which takes in Boston, Ft. Devens, Mass.; Ft. Meade, Md. and Ft. Dix, N.J., and Indiantown Gap Military Reservation.

The weekend training program follows on the heels of the annual summer training. Over 1,600 civilian soldiers from five states trained at Tobyhanna during a four-month period this spring and summer.

Palmerton's 11th annual exhibit

Hospital to hold art show

PALMERTON — The 11th annual Palmerton Hospital Festival Art Show will be held from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 13 (rain date is Sept. 14) at the Palmerton Ball Park, Delaware Avenue between 7th and 8th Streets.

The show will consist of three major categories — a special section honoring its early artists, a children's art contest, and its regular adult art exhibit featuring recent works done by area artists.

With a rich artistic heritage seldom found in towns of comparable size, Palmerton adds its own special touch to the country's bicentennial celebration by offering a unique exhibition devoted exclusively to art work done prior to 1960.

Owners and artists who have not been contacted are strongly urged to contact Mrs. Esther Haslam (826-6390) so that the show will be as complete as possible.

The children's art show will be the only one judged with a first, second and third prize plus two honorable mentions being made for each of four categories based on age. Exhibitors in this contest will be divided into pre-school (up through five years of age), ages 6-8 years, ages 9-13, and 14 years of age and older. Entries should include name, address and age on the back.

Judges for the contest will be

Sandra Neifert, a former art teacher in an elementary school system for several years; Daniel Tereshko, assistant professor of art at Moravian College; and Charles Mackinaw, coordinator of the fine arts program at Cedar Crest.

Emergency medical unit receives $77,804 grant

WILKES-BARRE — Luzerne County Commissioners were notified this week by State Transportation Secretary Jacob Kassab that its application for a $77,804 grant to fund the Emergency Medical Services Committee of the Health and Hospital Planning Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania has been approved.

The grant, part of the Governor's Highway Safety Program, is the prorata share of federal funds given to the states for on-going highway safety programs. It will be used by the EMS Committee to cover expenses incurred during the project period July 1, 1975 to June 30, 1976.

These expenses generally involve the training of ambulance attendants to an 81-hour level as emergency medical technicians; to carry out an on-going program of training in first aid, especially in car-

The regular adult art exhibit will feature recent works done by area artists and the media will include oils, watercolors, acrylics, sculptures, graphics and mixed media. Many of the works are expected to be for sale. The show is open to anyone who desires to participate.

dio-pulmonary resuscitation; funding for unified ambulance trip and hospital emergency reporting forms; and establishing and improving central fire, police, ambulance and hospital communications systems.

According to Richard Mangan, EMS Director of the Health and Hospital Planning Council, "the project is designed to lessen death and serious disability from accidents and illness through proper organized training."

Mangan told commissioners Ethel Price, Frank Crossin and E.C. Wideman, Jr., that the results of the ambulance trip form project will not become evident until data from ambulance companies throughout the region is collected and analyzed. He stated the unified reporting forms are necessary in expediting the collection of statistics.

Need an Electric Water Heater Replacement?

HERE'S A CHANGE THAT MAKES SENSE

WELL INSULATED TO SAVE ENERGY

80-GALLON CAPACITY

WATTAGE

THERMOSTAT SET
NO HIGHER THAN 140°

Not all electric water heaters are the same. Some use more electricity than others. Why? Mainly because they come in different types and sizes.

Take an 80-gallon low-wattage tank for example. Who would ever believe that each year it can operate on less electricity than the smaller quick recovery type most commonly used. It's true! And the better the tank is insulated and the lower the temperature setting, the more economical it will be. What's more, while it reheats water at a slower rate, its larger size can deliver all the hot water your family will normally need.

It's something to think about at replacement time. After all, because water heaters serve the whole family, 24 hours a day all year round, they are big energy users.

Why are we telling you all this? To help hold electricity use down. We don't sell electric water heaters... it's just that if you have one that needs replacement, an 80-gallon, low-wattage tank would be a good choice for you!

HEW takes easy solutions

Louisville, Kentucky, is the latest city to fall prey to anti-busing violence. Boston, Massachusetts, is fearfully expecting the same as that city enters its second year of federally ordered school busing this week.

On top of it all, those social scientists whose studies were the springboard for busing-for-integration are beginning to have second thoughts about the efficacy of it all.

And yet, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare continues to hand down its orders and federal judges continue to enforce them. The victim, in addition to the child caught up in the furor, is the traditional American concept of the neighborhood school.

Worse yet, the fundamental cause of racial imbalance in schools isn't being addressed: The flight of middle class whites out of the nation's cities into the suburbs and exurbs. But HEW seems entirely unconcerned about that aspect of the problem. Why look for a tough solution when there is such an easy one at hand?

In fact, HEW seems not to care much about any of the basic concept of our society, being caught up in the bureaucratic world of computer models and suffused with the heady power of arbitrary and non-accountable authority.

The department's latest directive on bilingual instruction, for example, flies in the face of the axiom that unity of national purpose and energy depends to a great extent on a common language. A common language eliminates a troublesome source of misunderstanding and unintentional conflict. Our tradition as the melting-pot was built on the fact that generations of immigrants learned the English tongue in order to share in the commercial and intellectual life of their new nation.

They did not forsake their native language. There are millions of bilingual families in the United States. It is not a difficult thing to have fluency in more than one language. It is the norm in Europe, for example.

But HEW wants bilingual instruction in schools. It is far easier to hand down that order than to take the time and trouble to devise a new curriculum that helps a child to fluency in English before instructing him in the other academic and technical disciplines.

As with the busing order, bureaucrats seek the gun-shot approach: One yank on the trigger to solve a problem that is as deep and complex as any mankind has faced — equality of opportunity.

Those bemused denizens of HEW's cavernous quarters should pick up the Bible (as history, really) and examine the parable of the tower of Babel. They might learn a little something about what makes for unity and what destroys it. Or they could listen to a discourse on the subject by a few disciples of esperanto, that artificial language at one time touted as the answer to the world's peace problems.

Senate probing FBI 'blackmail' file on Dr. King

WASHINGTON — The Senate Intelligence Committee is investigating allegations that the FBI tried to smear the late Dr. Martin Luther King by spreading stories about his sex life.

Some senators regard this as a classic abuse of police power. It will get special attention, therefore, from the committee.

Dr. King won the Nobel peace prize for his nonviolent crusade to gain equal rights for black Americans. He faced the police dogs and fire hoses of Southern sheriffs without flinching. His cry, "We shall overcome," stirred his people.

Dr. King's rhetoric, however, led him into a collision with the late, powerful FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover. This became one of the famous feuds of the 1960s.

Senate investigators are now trying to determine whether Hoover used the FBI to carry on his vendetta against Dr. King. They want to know who ordered the snooping and who leaked the sex stories to the press. They are also searching for FBI agents who participated in the actual surveillance of the civil rights leader.

We were the first to reveal on May 24, 1968, that the FBI had tapped Dr. King's telephones. We reported that the wiretaps had divulged information about his alleged love affairs, a subject that was none of the FBI's business.

Now, more than seven years later, we have dug deeper into the story for the answers.

There is bitter disagreement over who first suggested that the FBI eavesdrop on Dr. King. But in October 1963, Hoover obtained — some say wangled — a memorandum from then-Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy authorizing the controversial wiretaps.

Russia increasing world famine

WASHINGTON — The world faces the peril of mounting population and declining food resources.

This is widely recognized. What isn't widely recognized is that the Soviet Union, by its continuing mismanagement of its own agriculture — a mismanagement which Communist dogma makes inevitable — is making the crisis worse.

I am not saying that authoritarian government is always inefficient. It isn't. Even Mussolini got the trains running on time. The People's Republic of China has shown that its totalitarian government is capable of dealing quite well with population control. The Soviet Union has shown that its totalitarian government is capable of commanding the resources and the technicians to nearly match the achievements of the United States in space.

But it's increasingly clear that Soviet collectivized farming is not performing competently in the one vital area on which the stability, peace and health of the world greatly depend. Is it succeeding in organizing and using its resources to produce the food it could in order to do its part to avert worldwide famine — or is it adding unnecessarily to acute food shortages?

The evidence is that the Communist governments of both Russia and mainland China are contributing massively to the world food crisis by so mismanaging their own farming

Despite recent reports that college-educated Americans are losing their economic advantage over the less educated, the evidence remains indisputable that the higher your education, the higher will be your income class. In the category of the "rich," a whopping 54 per cent of all household heads have college degrees. Over a working lifetime, the gap between the earnings of the college-educated and the individual with minimum school attendance is enormous.

But if you're heading for college soon, you and your family are facing a record-sized towering burden. Just since last year, total college costs have jumped 6 to 8 per cent. Millions of you simply won't be able to manage it — without careful guidance and help.

The bright side of this week's series, though, is that there is help available — $6.1 billion this year in grants, loans and jobs — if you know where and how to look. Just choosing your type of college can make a difference of $2,000 to $3,000 in annual costs. Here are some examples of choices, from the least to the most expensive:

The official justification was to determine whether Dr. King had any secret ties with the Communists. But the only secret dealings that the wiretaps revealed were with women. His dynamism and courage had made him attractive to many women.

Here are examples of the sort of smut that the FBI collected about the Nobel prize winner:

—The FBI bugged his suite in Washington's elegant, old Willard Hotel. He allegedly drank too many "Black Russian" concoctions, bragged of his sexual prowess to a woman visitor and then proceeded to prove his boast.

—In Las Vegas, Dr. King allegedly picked up an FBI informant who reported to the FBI next morning that he had paid her $100 to spend the night with him.

—Another time, he allegedly became intoxicated and made passes at a woman in a New York City hotel. The secret FBI summary of the incident reported that "King threatened to leap from the 13th floor window of the hotel if this woman would not say she loved him."

—The CIA forwarded a raw, unverified report to the FBI that Dr. King, totally naked, chased a woman through an Oslo hotel during his Norway visit to receive the Nobel peace prize.

—The FBI also monitored Dr. King's relationship with the vivacious wife of a Los Angeles dentist. The FBI called it an "illicit affair." The woman insisted the relationship was "merely a friendship."

—As part of its continuing surveillance, the FBI bugged Dr. King's hotel suite in Atlantic City during the 1964 Democratic convention. But apparently nothing of significance was picked up. The FBI continued its electronic surveillance of Dr. Martin Luther King, according to our sources, until his death in April 1968. The latest secret sex report we saw was dated Feb. 20, 1968.

In other words, the FBI continued listening to Dr. King's most private conversations for nearly five years. Yet during all this time, the FBI picked up no evidence that he had committed a crime or was likely to commit one. J. Edgar Hoover's boys just kept filling up folders with titillating tidbits, idle gossip and vicious slander about the great Dr. King. His FBI dossier can only be described, therefore, as a blackmail file.

Indeed, we can prove that FBI officials

Understanding college costs key to education finance

(First in a series of five columns)

Despite recent reports that college-educated Americans are losing their economic advantage over the less educated, the evidence remains indisputable that the higher your education, the higher will be your income class. In the category of the "rich," a whopping 54 per cent of all household heads have college degrees. Over a working lifetime, the gap between the earnings of the college-educated and the individual with minimum school attendance is enormous.

The bright side of this week's series, though, is that there is help available — $6.1 billion this year in grants, loans and jobs — if you know where and how to look. Just choosing your type of college can make a difference of $2,000 to $3,000 in annual costs. Here are some examples of choices, from the least to the most expensive:

A free, low-tuition, two-year junior college,

Sylvia Porter

with you living at home;

A state college in your own state;

A private college, with you living at home; A proprietary school (trade or vocational school) preparing you for a particular business position or industry, skilled trade, semi-profession, personal service, recreational activity or some other occupational training;

A private college, with you living away from home or on campus.

As an illustration of costs, attending a privately-owned profit-making proprietary school can cost between $3,000 and $4,000 for a nine-month period. Financial assistance is available in some cases to help you meet these expenses.

As another illustration, this one of the potential differences in costs at public and private colleges, consider two major, highly respected coeducational institutions in the same state: the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania State University in University Park.

For the 1975-76 school year, the University of Pennsylvania is charging an average of $3,800 in tuition and fees and estimates $2,700 for everything else (room and board, books and supplies, transportation and personal expenses). Total: About $6,500 a year for a resident student.

For the same year, a resident of the state who chooses Penn State would be charged about $960 in tuition and fees, with other costs running about $2,094. Total: $3,054 for the year.

If you found that both institutions offered what you want, and you chose the state university, your annual saving would approximate $2,446. Admittedly, however, a higher cost institution often has more private financial aid funds available to help you make up the difference in costs.

Cost figures

Get the most current cost figures you can.

Do not rely on old information. If you already have selected your college, check the catalog for exact charges. Count everything as you prepare your budget: tuition and fees, room and board, books and supplies, transportation, personal expenses, everything.

If you are not yet ready to select one college, you can get excellent estimates of costs at many colleges from the College Scholarship Service (CSS) book, "Student Expenses at Postsecondary Institutions, 1975-76."

This is among the best guides of its kind and includes average costs at more than 2,000 two-year and four-year colleges and many proprietary schools. To get a copy, see your counselor, librarian, or send $2.50 to CSS, College Board Publication Orders, Box 2815, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

Getting a handle on costs is the first essential. Now you can begin to estimate how much you can afford and how much you'll need from other sources — such as student financial aid — to meet expenses. Most financial aid (especially a grant) is awarded only to those who can show they need it.

Crying on the inside

Editor, The Record:

It is very admirable that The Pocono Record made mention of the many tasks and duties performed by the "happy" custodians of the Pocono Mountain School District. But possibly the story in Wednesday's (August 20, 1975) paper "Custodians do more than cleaning" didn't tell the whole story.

The whole story would reveal not-so-happy custodians performing a very unrewarding job, and union formation suppression by school administration. It would also tell about the three custodians who were refused this year's annual pay raises by the administration for trying to organize the "happy" workers. Two of these three custodians work at the over 40-year-old elementary school and ironically the reason given by the administration for no annual raise was that this school did not look as nice as the brand new schools.

Is penalizing unionization this way the American way? Aren't these steadfast workers entitled to the allocated monies due them and the same collective bargaining rights the rest of us take for granted?

No, I think if the real truth was to be known things would not look as rosy for the custodians in the Pocono Mountain School District as some would have the public believe.

Miss America, Tawny Godin, 18, takes in wonder of New York skyscrapers

Claims critics are 'ignorant'

Miss America defends pageant

NEW YORK (UPI) — Statuesque and unruffled before a cynical New York press corps, 18-year-old Tawny Elaine Godin, the new Miss America, said critics of the traditional pageant were "ignorant" of its true value.

"I think people who ridicule the pageant are ignorant of what it gives girls," said Miss Godin at a news conference. "It gives a girl self-awareness and confidence and a chance to realize her true potential."

Wearing a beige tweed designer's suit fitted personally by couturier Albert Caparo, the brunette Skidmore College sophomore fielded a barrage of questions without so much as a stutter or a dimming of her constant high-candlepower smile.

How does she feel about abortion? "Woman should have freedom of choice in that area."

On pre-marital sex? "It's a matter of individual choice."

Legalization of marijuana? "We're not ready for it. There has not been enough research on its effects."

How does she feel being treated like a piece of meat? "You wouldn't be interviewing me if I was a piece of meat."

Miss Godin, who receives a $15,000 scholarship for her pageant victory, plans to study linguistics at Skidmore and possibly work with young people.

But, she added, she might want to develop her musical talents—she played an original piano composition in the final talent competition—or go into broadcasting. "There are so many doors opening to me," she said.

The new Miss America will spend eight more days in New York before leaving for Georgia to start a series of public appearances around the country. If past indications hold up, she will log some 300,000 miles before her year is over.

Miss Godin, who measures 36-24-36, described herself as an "All American traditional girl" and said she was for women's liberation—up to a point.

"I obviously am a feminine person," she said. "I like to have men open doors for me. If I smoked—which I don't—I would like to have men light the cigarettes for me."

When asked to describe her ideal man, Miss Godin, who stands 5 feet, 10½ inches, said immediately, "Tall." She said she had six or seven boyfriends adding, "I space them out equally."

For exercise she said she likes to swim, jog or play tennis. Her hobbies include cooking, genealogical research, writing limericks and musical composition.

Asked who her heroes were, she could mention only one—composer Michel Le Grand. "He exudes music," she said. "He can do anything with music and I wish I could."

Pa. teacher strikes keep 140,000 kids on vacation

By United Press International

Teachers walked off the job in contract disputes in two more Pennsylvania school districts Monday, but a settlement was reached in a district where teachers were idled last week by a lockout.

The strikes and lockouts across the state idled nearly 7,400 teachers in 29 school districts and suspended classes for about 140,000 students.

Teachers in the Laurel School District in Lawrence County Monday ratified by a 60-6 vote a contract settlement reached with the school board Sunday night. Schools in the district, closed all of last week by a lockout, will open today for the first day of the new term.

The new strikes involved 240 teachers in the Sharon School District in Mercer County and 127 teachers in the Reynolds district, also in Mercer County. The Sharon district has 3,500 students, and the Reynolds district 2,600.

Sharon teachers voted Sunday night to strike following rejection by the school board of the teachers' proposal for binding arbitration. Reynolds' teachers also voted Sunday night to walk off the job after the school board turned down their contract demands.

Strikes were settled during the weekend in the Reading School District and the Governor Mifflin School District in the eastern part of the state.

About 14,000 students in the Reading district and about 4,500 in the Governor Mifflin district in Berks County returned to classes Monday.

In Allegheny County, a spokesman for the Baldwin-Whitehall Education Association, representing more than 400 striking teachers, said contract talks were terminated when no significant progress resulted from a 3-hour negotiating session with the school board Sunday. The district has 8,500 students.

Nearly 150 school districts have not reached contract agreement with teachers but most of them reported for classes, although in many cases on a day-to-day basis.

George E. Barber, spokesman for the Pennsylvania State Education Association, bargaining agent for most of the teachers, said the PSEA faced the largest number of unsigned teacher contracts in memory.

"If the trend of past years is followed," Barber said, "I would think that most, if not all, of the strikes will be settled by the end of the month."

A preliminary injunction was issued by Chester County Common Pleas Judge John Wajert banning a strike by 250 teachers at the Great Valley School District in Paoli, which has about 4,500 students.

Only few holdouts left in coal miners' walkout

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — A month-long wildcat walkout by dissident coal miners demanding the right to strike without federal court interference appeared to be ending Monday with only a small pocket of resistance remaining.

Edwin Wiles, president of the West Virginia Coal Association, said only about 7,500 of the state's mine force failed to report for work. At its height, the strike idled an estimated 60,000 miners, including 40,000 in West Virginia, and other coal producing states.

"The strike is over," a United Mine Workers spokesman in Washington said. "The men are returning to work and only a few diehard holdouts remain."

The small group of holdouts was in Logan and Boone counties, where the strike began Aug. 11 over a local union officer's dismissal by Amherst Coal Co. The strike later grew to include protests of the use of court injunctions by coal operators to end walkouts, and demands by an apparent minority faction of pickets that the UMW contract include a right-to-strike provision.

UMW President Arnold Miller appeared here last Friday to call for an end to the strike, after the international union was fined more than $1 million by a federal judge.

Grand jury indicts PennDOT officials

MERCER, Pa. (UPI) — A Mercer County grand jury has indicted six state Transportation Department officials, including the local PennDOT superintendent, for alleged theft, making and falsification of records.

Among those indicted was Richard H. Miller, 32, a PennDOT employee and the county's Democratic party chairman. He was charged with failing to register with the state a trucking company he owned. The firm was the Connoquenessing Trucking Co., which Miller ran from 1972 to 1973.

The grand jury said Miller got a state snow removal contract in October, 1972 and was paid $1,400 in rental money for a truck that was never used by PennDOT.

Herbert Vanderslice, 43, a PennDOT assistant superintendent, and Donald Harpst, a PennDOT foreman, were indicted for allegedly forging the documents Miller needed to get the contract. They also were charged with conspiracy.

Vanderslice and Jack Best-line, another PennDOT assistant superintendent, also were indicted for allegedly making a PennDOT contractor. The grand jury said the two men banned the contractor from doing any state work until he gave a $150 contribution to the Democratic party.

The grand jury also indicted Joseph P. Iacino, the Mercer County PennDOT superintendent, and state workers Harry Murray and Clarence Braine, for allegedly selling for $2,500 a state-owned forklift that was supposed to be dismantled for parts.

The forklift was discovered by state police in a garage 90 miles away from Mercer County.

Joseph Fontana, the co-owner of a Mercer County motel, also was indicted for the alleged theft.

A state Justice Department spokesman in Harrisburg said Monday investigators began probing PennDOT operations in the western Pennsylvania county in June, 1974.

Philly paper questions cost of Rizzo's house

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The new $90,000 home that Mayor Frank L. Rizzo recently moved into actually cost $410,000, the Philadelphia Daily News charged Monday in a copyrighted story.

The News said massive renovation and new construction on the property in the Chestnut Hill section was done under the direction of Al Pearlman, a friend of the mayor's.

The newspaper said it based its cost figure on the home on minimal estimates from architects and contractors on the work done to the property.

The News said this included complete interior renovation at $270,000, new stonework, $30,000, new stone fireplace $4,000, new sidewalk $1,000, new asphalt paving $3,000, sod landscaping $8,000 and driveway and patio lights, $4,000.

The newspaper said a new three-car garage will cost an additional $20,000 but that work on the structure was halted when the Daily News asked to see permits for construction.

Two years ago, Pearlman was building a home for Rizzo in the Roxborough section of the city. It was estimated that home would cost $400,000 and Rizzo later gave it up, saying he could not afford it.

First to gain sanctity

American saint to be canonized

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The late Pope John XXIII called Mother Elizabeth Ann Bayley Seton "the flower of American piety."

A Vatican sainthood investigator seeking gaps in the purity of her thoughts and deeds found none. He also judged her "a true physical beauty unmarred by vanity."

Mother Seton, whom Pope Paul VI on Sept. 14 will canonize as America's first native-born saint, saw herself this way:

"If I were a man, I would walk in Xavier's footsteps. The abyss of the sea and the expanded sky would be well explored."

Like St. Francis Xavier, the first Jesuit missionary, Mother Seton left significant footprints. She founded the Sisters of Charity, the first American order of Roman Catholic nuns, and pioneered the U.S. parochial school system and Catholic orphanages.

The morning canonization ceremony that climaxes a 93-year sainthood drive by Mother Seton's order was planned originally for inside St. Peter's Basilica. Vatican officials decided to hold it in St. Peter's Square so all the expected 15,000 or more Americans requesting seats can witness the two-hour procedure in comfort.

Five U.S. cardinals, more than 500 priests and 80 bishops from the United States and Canada and about 1,000 of the 8,000 Sisters of Charity are scheduled to be present. Vatican officials said that if the weather is good upwards of 100,000 persons might attend the canonization, the third of six during the 1975 Holy Year.

Pope Paul has eliminated much of the ancient pageantry from canonizations, leaving only a papal mass, the reading of the sainthood decree and a homily.

In Emmitsburg, Maryland, where Mother Seton founded her order, thousands of pilgrims are expected to attend celebrated masses throughout the day.

Although she will be the first native-born U.S. saint, Mother Seton was preceded into the Roman Catholic pantheon by Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini, an Italian-born naturalized American canonized in 1947.

Elizabeth Ann Bayley was born into a socially prominent New York City family two years before the Declaration of Independence. Raised a devout Episcopalian, she was 19 when she married 26-year-old William Seton, a Protestant with a thriving shipping and importing business. She bore him three daughters and two sons.

In 1803 the shipping business slumped because of the war between France and Britain. William Seton developed tuberculosis. Doctors suggested a sea voyage and the Setons with their eldest child Ann sailed to visit two Italian friends, Antonio and Filippo Filicchi, in Leghorn, Italy.

The landing in Italy was delayed for nearly a month by a quarantine because a yellow fever epidemic was raging in the United States. William Seton's illness worsened quickly and he died a week after finally going ashore.

Mrs. Seton, then 30, was overcome with grief. The Filicchi brothers tried to comfort her and took her to Florence, where she became interested in Roman Catholicism. She returned to New York with Ann four months later, still an Episcopalian, but on March 14, 1805, became a Catholic.

All but disowned by her family and nearly penniless, she moved to Baltimore and with clerical encouragement founded a school in nearby Emmitsburg which developed into the order of the Sisters of Charity. She remained the order's superior until she died in Baltimore, age 47, on Jan. 4, 1821.

Her cause for sainthood was not launched until 61 years later and it took the Vatican until 1936 to probe the most intimate details of her life for flaws and to decide she could be considered for sainthood.

Then came the proof of medical miracles, the next hurdle that most would-be saints never clear. The Vatican demands evidence, exhaustively challenged, of a person's recovery from a hopeless illness after prayers have been offered to the sainthood candidate.

Two accepted miracles, the 1952 recovery of a 15-year-old Baltimore girl from acute lymphatic leukemia, and the 1933 recovery of a New Orleans nun from terminal cancer of the pancreas led to her beatification by Pope John XXIII on March 17, 1963, less than three months before he died.

Beatification, the proclamation that a person is a "blessed" in heaven, usually but not always leads to sainthood, the declaration the person is "truly in heaven."

Sainthood requires two more miracles. The third accepted involved Carl Kalin, then a 60-year-old Swedish-born construction worker from Yonkers, N.Y., who suffered what doctor's said was an incurable inflammation of the brain in November 1963. His wife, a Catholic, prayed to Mother Seton and three days later he recovered. Now retired and living in Florida, Kalin, a Lutheran, converted to Catholicism last December.

Pope Paul, as is his privilege, waived the fourth miracle and last Dec. 12 announced Mother Seton would become a saint.

Kalin and Mrs. Anne O'Neill Hooce, the girl cured of leukemia who is now married and the mother of five, will attend the canonization.

The main driving force behind the sainthood cause has been the Mother Seton Guild, established by the Sisters of Charity in 1939 to solicit donations and promote the foundress's cause.

Making a saint is a costly business because of the volume of work involving investigations, legal and medical testimony and preparation and translation of documents. But Mother Seton workers criticize some U.S. press reports claiming that millions of dollars have been spent. Official figures are kept secret.

"Such reports are grossly inaccurate," said the Rev. Joseph I. Dirvin, Mother Seton's biographer and the press spokesman for the American organizers.

"The idea of millions of dollars is absolutely ridiculous," he said. "It (the figure) would not have touched a million since 1939."

Cholesterol levels and mushrooms

Japanese mushrooms have captured the imagination of doctors collaboratively working in Japan and at the University of Michigan.

Japanese scientists are said to have isolated a chemical in these mushrooms that can lower cholesterol levels in the blood.

Dr. Kenneth W. Cochran of Michigan is investigating this chemical, erit-adenine. He is comparing it to that found in the American mushroom.

Experimental studies hold promise for this new discovery.

The pendulum swings to and fro in the discussion of the value of breast feeding.

It has always been recognized that there is great psychological value in the closeness of the relationship that exists between the mother and the breast-fed infant.

Dr. Alan E. Beer, working at the University of Texas in Dallas, found that human milk may contain valuable antibodies and proteins that protect the infant from infection.

Dr. Beer and his colleagues believe that immune protection is one of the great benefits of breast feeding.

With this added hypothesis, advocates of breast feeding will, indeed, go into high gear.

It often becomes important to know how actively blood flows from the heart, to the carotid arteries, to the brain.

Dr. Mark M. Kartchner and Dr. Lorin McRae, of the Tucson Medical Center in Arizona, have devised a method that determines any obstruction in the carotid artery.

A sensitive microphone, placed over the neck, records the sound of blood flowing through the arteries. The sounds are transcribed to a tape recorder.

Irregularities of blood flow can thus be detected. This is particularly important to those who hope to learn how to reduce the frequency of strokes in patients with severe arteriosclerosis.

Your children have problems you never had.

The Information Explosion

There's a lot more to learn about these days than there was when you were a young student. For example, twenty-five years ago computers were in their infancy. The rotary engine hadn't yet been developed. Communication satellites were still years away. There were no such things as manned space flights, moon landings, or probes of other planets. Words like "ecology," "laser," "recycling" and "nuclear" hadn't yet entered the popular language. Fossil evidence showed man to be a mere 2 million years old. Today, science points to nearly three times that age. In virtually every area of study there has been a vast increase of information over the past 25 years.

Survival Tactics for Students

While your children have much more to learn than you did, classrooms today are more crowded than ever, and teachers have less time to spend with each individual child. The students who are best equipped to succeed under these conditions are those who know how to get information, who have access to a home, and who enjoy the search for facts.

With Britannica Junior Encyclopaedia One Thing Leads to Another

Britannica Junior has been made so interesting that your youngsters will go to it on their own, and for the fun of it, discovering whole worlds of information and developing a love of self-study that will prove very valuable to them. Britannica Junior further stimulates interest by presenting many enjoyable projects that students can undertake on their own. Such as public speaking, and bookable telegrams. All in all, Britannica Junior is the most "newsworthy" thing you can bring home from the supermarket.

Better Homes & Gardens
Encyclopedia of Cooking

It takes a lot more than money-saving recipes to save money on food these days.

It takes the Better Homes & Gardens Encyclopedia of Cooking. You'll find it packed with enough money-saving hints to pay for itself. There are entries on meal planning and nutrition, including charts on vitamins, minerals and calories. Did you know, for example, that while lower grade eggs are cheaper they are not lower in nutritional value; that the dark meat of poultry has more nutrition than the light. And that equal servings of meat are equal in protein, but may differ in vitamins and minerals?

And that's just the beginning. There are 20 easy-to-use, hard-cover volumes. Published by America's No. 1 Food Editors with over 50 years of cooking experience under their belts.

You'll find information on shopping for fruits and vegetables. Including what times of the year to get the best quality at the best price.

To help you properly store the food you buy before and after you cook it, there are sections with the different methods of canning, freezing, even defrosting, completely detailed.

PLUS 4,200 RECIPES FOR EVERYONE FROM THE THRIFTIEST SHOPPER TO THE TOUCHIEST GOURMET.

Since an encyclopedia of cooking wouldn't be complete without recipes, there are recipes. Enough, in fact, to make three different meals a day for three years and eight months without repeating one.

You'll find everything from a Swiss-Turkey Ham Bake that turns leftovers into a meal elegant enough for a mother-in-law, to a Beef A La Wellington and Baked Alaska fit for a holiday feast.

And since good food is not measured by the amount of time spent in the kitchen, many of the recipes outline the traditional and a shortcut version as well.

Yet all this is just a taste of The Better Homes & Gardens Encyclopedia of Cooking. If you'd like to know more, pick up Vol. 1 in any of our supermarkets. Then pick up a volume or two a week until you have the complete set.

It'll help you make the most of our food and your food dollars.

Defends pot

By Jean Adams

MARIJUANA: (Q.) I have heard many rumors about pot! I have found out for myself that most of these rumors are not true. I have smoked it since I was in eighth grade and am now a junior in high school. As far as I can tell there has been no physical or mental effect on me.

I also know many other people who have smoked pot for over six years and they haven't had any problems. I think that the only problem with pot is that it is illegal. I don't think it should be. If pot were legal, everyone would benefit 100 per cent. Please tell me your opinion on pot.

Freak in New York

(A.) I can't understand why you smoke marijuana if, as you say, it has no physical or mental effect on you. I believe it does affect you physically and mentally, and you like those effects, because for a while they make you feel bigger and more important than you really are, and you like that feeling, no matter what it may cost you in the future.

In your search for reality through marijuana, please try not to be blind to reality.

GLASSES: (Q.) Garry thinks I am cute but I am afraid I won't think I'm cute anymore because I have to get glasses. Please help me!

Dreading It in Indiana (A.) Get glasses with fashionable frames designed to make your face look interesting. And wear them positively. They will help you to see and to think more clearly.

If Garry thinks clearly and is the boy worth your interest, he won't let glasses cloud his interest in you.

Mrs. Brian Schick

Phyllis Poliskiewicz weds Brian Schick

EAST BANGOR — Mr. and Mrs. Philip Poliskiewicz announce the marriage of their daughter, Phyllis, to Brian Schick on Sept. 7 in the Prince of Peace Evangelical Lutheran Church, East Bangor.

The groom is the son of Oscar M. Schick and the late

Mary Schick, Hellertown.

Joy Hovancik was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Lori Poliskiewicz, Lee Ann Carne, Debbie Sagen and Pam Hoskins. Flower girls were Lori Skibo and Janet Poliskiewicz.

James Poliskiewicz was best man. Ushers were Philip Poliskiewicz, Jr., Jim Hovancik, Jim Carne, and Denny Moyer. Jeffrey Poliskiewicz was ring bearer.

The bride is a graduate of Bangor High School and attended Northampton Area Community College.

The groom is a graduate of Hellertown-Lower Saucon High School and is employed by Bethlehem Steel. He served two years in the U.S. Army.

A reception was held in the Blue Valley Farm Show building. Following a wedding trip to the Poconos, Mr. and Mrs. Schick will make their home at 509 Magnolia Rd., Hellertown.

Bridge club winners

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Pocono Bridge Club winners for Sept. 2 were:

East-West: Herb and Beth Kothe, first; Minnie Buck and Mary Curll, second; Joe and Carol Stout, third.

North-South: Tim Uhl and Frank Feldman, first; F.G. Stoddard and Gary Benner, second; Helen Foster and Dewey Detruide, third.

The club is accredited by the American Contract Bridge League and meets every Tuesday evening in Dansbury Commons, East Stroudsburg State College.

Pairs or singles are invited to all sessions. Master points can be earned.

Warnckes celebrate

STROUDSBURG — Mr. and Mrs. Louis Warncke are off to Europe to celebrate their golden wedding. They are the parents of Wayne Warncke and Lorna Koehler who have entertained for them during their stay here.

The Warnckes were residents of Stroudsburg for 40 years before moving to Florida.

FTC attacks deceptive practices

By PATRICIA FANNING
Dow Jones-Ottaway News

Three truck-driving schools have been ordered by the Federal Trade Commission to stop using certain sales tactics that the FTC deems to be deceptive. A cease-and-desist order was issued against American Tractor Training Inc., of Foxboro, Mass.

The commission signed a consent order, which is not an admission of any wrongdoing, with Diesel Truck Drivers Training School, Inc., of Sun Prairie, Wis.

The FTC contended that all three schools falsely claimed affiliation with trucking companies and that there was a high demand for graduates. The Wisconsin school was alleged to have represented that its placement service was free although the cost was included in tuition.

The schools were ordered to make fuller disclosures and to allow students a cooling-off period within which they could cancel a contract.

Monkeys

Monkeys and other nonhuman primates may no longer be legally imported as pets after Oct. 10. The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has banned import except for scientific, educational or exhibition purposes.

The agency also set up registration and disease surveillance requirements for incoming animals.

The center for disease control says primates are a significant source of infectious disease in humans, including hepatitis, tuberculosis, and sometimes disabling or fatal parasitic infections.

Until recently about 100,000 of the animals have been imported each year, with about half being sold as pets.

Calculators

Home canners shouldn't experiment with canning lid substitutes, warns the Department of Agriculture.

Because of the shortage of canning supplies, people have been trying to reuse old lids with the aid of cellophane, glue, and even bathroom caulking, the department reports. The result is unsafe food, says Nancy Steorts, the department's consumer adviser, who urges consumers to freeze food instead.

Produce can be frozen in rigid aluminum, plastic, or tin packages, plastic bags, and glass jars. She says jars will do for most fruits and vegetables not packed in water.

The department has a 48-page manual, "Home Freezing of Fruits and Vegetables," available for 65 cents from Consumer Information Dept. 37, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Pocket calculators may be used on an airliner if the airline involved has approved use of the electronic devices, the Federal Aviation Agency has ruled. This is a modification of an earlier agency ruling banning the use of calculators by passengers.

The FAA forbids the use of a number of electronic devices, including radios. Calculators have been added to a number of items whose use is up to individual airlines.

The list includes tape recorders, hearing aids, heart pacemakers, and electric shavers. Most airlines permit the use of such items, having determined that they do not interfere with their aircraft's navigation or communication systems.

Craft books

Many Americans have already taken their summer vacations and more are anticipating fall vacations. The higher cost of transportation is forcing many families to look for ways to save on their travel dollars.

The budget motel may well be one of those ways in which you choose to save money on your vacation.

Budget motels are relatively new commercial lodging establishments offering clean, generally modern rooms and often little else at usually less than $10 a day for single occupancy. Budget motels offer a "back to basics" alternative to the traveling public without losing any of the necessities for a comfortable evening's rest. Usually you'll find a full-sized room for sleeping, complete furnishings which include a top quality double bed, air conditioning, bath, sometimes with a tub but always with a shower, and a television set. More budget motels are beginning to provide colored television and a free parking place adjacent to the room.

Some have telephones in each room — others do not. Rates run from about $7 to 19 for a single occupancy plus $2 extra for each additional person in a room.

Despite these features, there is in most cases, little doubt that it is a budget motel. There are no bellmen, room service, convention or banquet facilities.

Most do not have restaurants although they are usually located nearby. Some have vending machines complete with microwave oven for warming sandwiches and soup. Swimming pools are customary but usually small.

Credit cards may be honored, but in most cases, centralized reservations are not available although the guest can make reservations ahead by telephoning at his own expense.

There are approximately 100,000 budget motels now in operation across the country. If you are planning a vacation and are looking for budget lodging facilities, you can locate budget motels through the Chamber of Commerce or a tourist promotion agency in the town or city you plan to visit.

If you are interested in a clean, attractive motel without all of the fancy additions of many luxury motels, then a budget motel may be for you.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Our old friend Herb Mayes, once publisher of Good Housekeeping magazine, later publisher and then president of McCall Corp., living in London since his retirement these half dozen years, once told us the executives of multi-national corporations yearned a common dream: to live in London, with a Chinese wife, a French cook — on an American salary; these same permatetic tycoons also were nagged by the correlated nightmare: to live in Paris with an American wife, an English cook — on a Chinese salary.

Ah, but now comes world inflation, stagflation, recession, etc., and even Herb Mayes, so luxuriously ensconced in his handsome flat at No. 1 Hyde Park St., London, has decided to end his happy residency; why? Taxes. Of course.

American economic confusion disappears alongside Britain's fiscal terrors; or worse, Italy's for that matter. In England taxation is growing downright confiscatory. The English Bulldoggedly-thorough tax collectors would drive a Yankee to another Boston Tea Party. The poor and the very rich are being more than socked — they are being slashed beyond the bone. Personal income tax is being inflicted steeper than during WW II, when Lady Mountbatten, one of the journalistically generally unbothered richest women in the world was taxed at the rate of about 105 per cent of her fantastic income; how? Taxed her capital, of course, and that's the road from income to outcome about to be re-traversed by some of Blighty's richest citizens — and visitors.

No longer is London the marvelous city to settle in for a few visiting or retired years as have so many Yanks, especially artistic and showbiz types. Burt Shevelove, who lives equally luxuriously in Herb Mayes' tonily-located building, while wincing at the whacks at his wherewithal, will remain; he's a big success both sides of the Atlantic, on Bdwy. and in London's theatrical West End, on TV and fashioning films and other merry media rigadoons.

But Herb Mayes has packed it in. To stem the ennu of his retirement, Herb had founded The Overseas American, a mighty useful newsletter for Americans working overseas or sporting in foreign playpens; but The Overseas American had a symbiotic relationship to Herb's current firm plan to sail home Sept. 24 on the QE2: while researching assorted European capitals, with expected emphasis on his expatriate London home base, Herb's mind kept tripping over the fiscal facts of life abroad, taxes, costs, extrapolated expenses, the discouraging works.

A brainy gent with the ability to read the tangible future in the crystal globes on his Georgian sideboard, Herb promptly sold his Overseas American to a rich English firm, then sold his long-run Hyde Park St. leasehold and started packing. The savings will be considerable, including the all too frequent phone calls to his married daughters in Manhattan.

Now we come to a personal assessment: London as A Visitor, which we were twice this summer on the way from the QE2 to the continent, and on the way home; how else could we get to Southampton where the QE2 turns around! For a visitor (we've been to London so many times we're now a "visitor," having graduated from the pejorative "tourist") London remains a fine, satisfying experience. Of course, many visitors, more often the tourists, bemoan the terrible recent fate of Americans in London: why, do you know you have to pay as much for an old London luxury hotel as you do in New York? Meals are almost as expensive as at "21," the Cote Basque, etc., in Manhattan? Hotel laundry costs almost as much as at the St. Regis, Plaza, the Regency, the Berkshire, the Drake, the Warwick & Why, Savile Row men's suits are almost as expensive as they are in New York? Cabs cost almost as much as they do in Gotham?

It's no secret what a true tourist, as apart from a visitor, demands abroad: he wants a hotel costing a fraction of a homeside Hilton, a gourmet dinner at one-arm-lunchroom rate, clothes at a mini-fraction of what Macy tells Gimbels; he wants not so much a cultural experience as to beat the price back home. Ergo, far fewer Americans are encountered in London's best restaurants; of course they're too snobbish to look for the splendid little neighborhood restaurant; who'd see them there? Who would they be able to see to describe a celebrity-elbow-rub when they get home?

But London for a longplay Anglophile still is a joy, a most civilized city with marvelous museums, great visual history available, the London Theatre even better and busier than Broadway's, even if we've just ended a fine theatrical season and the oncoming dramaticurical year seems likely to be the best in decades with every Bdwy. theater reserved for incoming productions.

Also, once upon a prosperity, London suddenly was under-ho-teled; to such drastic degree that the British government gave amazingly huge subsidies to anyone building a new hotel; so many local hoteliers built new hostleries, dashing by the dozens to start construction before the government's cutoff date on the calendar, that the arrival of too many completed hotels coincided with the eruption of the British economic panic. We'd always stopped at the Savoy or Dorchester hotels over the decades but in the midst of their major prosperity that brought on the hotel building boom, we stumbled over an unusual apathy upon trying to get reservations. Ergo, our loyalty to their elegant histories shifted to something we could arrange with a local Manhattan phone call.

Loew's Inc. had built a splendid hotel on Portman Square in London; we got our booking with one dialing. Bob Tisch, a lad we've known since his and his brother Larry's first Borscht Circuit hotel and their first borschtless hotel in Atlantic City, earlier had built the hotel they'd tried to name The Portman but the Yankeephobe Portman family demurred; as Bob Tisch in a nominal flash remembered the triumphant respect we Yanks had for Sir Winston and promptly named the hotel The Churchill. It is a de luxe hotel quietly decorating the corner of Portman Square with elegantly marbled lobby, teddily British lackeys in attendance from top management to clerks (we wish they'd do something about the lippy Germanic type in the news shop, though); and with tangential satisfaction that it is an American hotel in the first place, we enjoyed our double-stay at Bob's Churchill.

Because it was built only several years ago, it enjoys something the old-ladylike hotels lack in this economic strain — the absence of vast unusable space everywhere; consequently it's less expen-

Ann Landers Peeling onions

Dear Readers: With everything that is happening in the world, do you know what people are concerned about this week? Would you believe it's how to peel onions without crying?

Recently I printed a letter from a reader who had the thing licked. "I learned the trick from my mother-in-law," she boasted. And then she went on to say, "If you start at the root of the onion and peel up you'll never shed a tear."

Well, I did a little home research and ended up with bloodshot eyes and a runny nose. I told my "little helper" to give my regards to her mother-in-law.

This is what the mail has been like all week:

"Weep no more, my lady. Just put an electric fan on your work-counter when you peel onions and it will blow all those awful fumes away."

Michigan Fan

"Why cry when you can put a plastic bag over your head and get the job done dryeyed and in record time?"

Cincinnati Clara

"Our home-ec teacher taught us how to peel onions and keep smiling. Just put on sunglasses, sweetie."

Atlanta Fan

"If you stick a whole slice of white bread in your mouth you'll never shed a tear. Grandma taught me this trick when I was a bride."

Grand Rapids Fan

"No more bawling over the onions. Not since my next-door neighbor told me to slice them submerged in a bowl of cold water. But be careful and don't cut your finger."

Rosemary In Rochester

"Just put the onions in the freezer for 15 or 20 minutes before you cut them and your problem is solved."

Las Vegas Hash Slinger

"My great uncle served in World War One and brought a gas mask home from France as a souvenir. The darned thing is perfect for peeling onions. But don't answer the door wearing one. The paper boy came to collect one day and the poor kid almost fainted."

St. Louis
"Put a clothespin on your nose and keep your mouth open. It never fails."

Memphis, Tenn.
"I wear my husband's motorcycle helmet with the goggles when I slice onions and I haven't shed a tear since I thought the stunt up."

Manhattan Cook
"Put a large hunk of raw potato in your mouth and you'll never cry over an onion again as long as you live."

Jackson, Miss.
"If you wear contact lenses keep them in. They make your eyes 'onion proof.'"

Little Rock
So, there you are, Dear Ones, a whole host of helpful hints to choose from But remember—I'm not guaranteeing any of them. You're strictly on your own. And please don't write and tell me what works and what doesn't. If I never see another letter about onions again it will be too soon.

Yours, Truly,
ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I've been sitting here for 30 minutes trying to say this in language you can print. Here's the best I can do. After 15 years of marriage my husband is suggesting things I think are far out. What is right and what is wrong in married sex?

N.N.

Dear N.N.: There's no "right" or "wrong." If two people agree, anything is O.K. It's up to them to decide. Note, I said TWO people.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Five teens heard in court

STROUDSBURG — Five juvenile cases were heard Monday in Monroe County court, involving charges of theft or drug use.

A 12-year-old Wooddale resident was ordered to undergo psychiatric and psychological testing after it was revealed he had stolen property in rare coins, firearms and jewelry amounting to $3,692 from a neighbor's house. Disposition was deferred pending the results of the tests.

A 17-year-old Effort resident charged with unauthorized use of an automobile and driving under the influence was placed on probation for two years, ordered to surrender his driver's license for a year, to make restitution and to attend college.

A 16-year-old from East Stroudsburg admitted burglarizing the Burger Queen in East Stroudsburg at 1 a.m. July 30 and removing $27 from a pinball machine.

He was placed on probation for two years and ordered by Judge Arlington W. Williams to return to school and make monthly reports on his progress to the county probation office.

A Stroudsburg youth, 17, admitted selling stolen goods and using a false name in connection with the burglary of an electrical equipment company in Stateford May 23, 1974.

The youth was declared delinquent by the court and other charges were dropped. The juvenile was ordered to report for disposition Sept. 22 at 10 a.m.

In a final case, two juveniles, 15 and 16, of Kunkletown agreed to enter consent agreements on charges of violating the controlled substance law.

Beef thief sentenced in Monroe

STROUDSBURG — A New York man was sentenced to six-23 months in jail Monday in connection with the theft of 30,000 pounds of beef last March.

Robert A. McCoy of the Bronx was sentenced by Monroe County Judge James R. Marsh on charges of theft and making false reports to a police officer.

In other court action Monday, the sentencing of Charles Rinehart of Nazareth, charged with burglary, theft and receiving stolen property, was deferred until 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

Rinehart was arrested last January after a month-long search and was charged with shooting at a state policeman after burglarizing a Long Pond home.

Charges of aggravated assault and reckless endangerment have since been dropped against the 28-year-old Rinehart. He admitted the theft charges.

Also, parole was granted Glenn Howard Lewis, 26, of Kunkletown who has been seven months in jail on a six-23 month sentence for forgery.

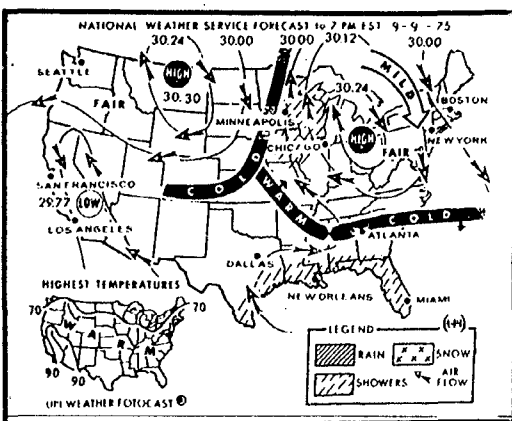

Judge Marsh granted the parole for the balance of the term on condition Lewis pay $25 a week to the county probation and parole department for distribution to Lewis' victims. He still owes $1,525 in restitution.

Obituaries

Rollo LaBar — Funeral services for Rollo LaBar, 87, of 912 Scott St., Stroudsburg, who died Sunday in the General Hospital of Monroe County, East Stroudsburg, will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday from the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home, Stroudsburg. The Rev. William F. Wunder will officiate. Burial will be in Kellers Cherry Valley Reformed Cemetery. Viewing will be from 1 p.m. to time of service Wednesday.

Public meeting

MOUNT POCONO — The Mount Pocono Taxpayers Association has urged that members and other interested borough residents wishing to express opinions on the sewerage monthly rental should attend the local municipal authority meeting at 8 p.m. today in the Mount Pocono Municipal Building. It is anticipated that action will be taken on the issue.

Housing impact reported

AVOCA — A report issued by the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania indicates the second home industry has a major impact on the area.

Executive director Howard Grossman said, "The second home industry in Northeastern Pennsylvania is a major factor in the growing recreation and travel development activities."

The report indicated that 82 of the 92 second home developments of the Appalachian region registered with the Department of Housing and Urban Development are in northeastern Pennsylvania.

Also, 79 per cent of the 56,490 acres in these 92 projects is in the northeast area.

Career coordinator needed

It's (now) a real job keeping track of jobs

STROUDSBURG — Special government funding for jobs is pouring into Monroe County from enough sources to justify hiring someone to keep track of them, Monroe officials decided Monday.

At a meeting of the county Salary Board, the three county commissioners and county treasurer voted to create a job classification termed "career development coordinator."

The person who fills the position will be responsible for administering Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds which are now being filtered through the county, the Stroudsburg Bureau of Employment Security and the Area Manpower Board, a tri-county group.

Monroe received nearly $200,000 in August under the CETA program. It began in January with a grant of $92,528 and has accounted for the employment of about 32 persons in the Monroe area.

Some 11 persons were officially added to the payroll under the CETA program Monday. The positions filled and salaries were as follows:

Clerk-typists in the Monroe County Public Library, the Pocono Mountain Vacation

Bureau, the county assessor's office, the county voter registration office and the civil defense office at $191.56 bi-weekly; a junior draftsman for the planning office at $200 bi-weekly; a secretary for the commissioners office at $201.56 bi-weekly; a jail cook and matron at $300 bi-weekly; a kitchen aide at the Salvation Army nutrition program at $188 bi-weekly, and at PMVB a public relations trainee and soil conservation agent both at $204 bi-weekly.

Other employees hired by the county and approved Monday included: two magistrate secretaries at $2.50 an hour, a clerk-typist in the Register and Recorder's office at $191.54 bi-weekly, a special sheriff deputy at $3.75 an hour, a clerk in the prothonotary's office at $2.50 an hour, a swimming instructor (for August) at the West End Park at $2.50 an hour, a solicitor for the treasurer at $1,600 annually.

Also approved, officially, was the state-mandated $11,000 salary for Treasurer Robert Coleman.

Mental Health Mental Retardation employee salaries included approval for a clerk-typist in the Drug and Alcohol clinic at $223.50 bi-weekly, a mental retardation caseworker increase to $10,054 annually, a clerk-steno in the Drug and Alcohol clinic at $233.25 bi-weekly and a caseworker trainee in the same agency at $335.25 bi-weekly.

Also approved was a 15-cent a mile reimbursement for Mental Health Mental Retardation and Children Bureau employees, provided there is legal confirmation by the county solicitor.

Also, overtime payments totaling $114.15 for August to three county departments were approved.

State advice sought on tax break

check before implementing special property assessment rates under Pennsylvania's open space law, Act. 319.

Having received the petitions last Thursday, the commissioners now want to check the constitutionality of the law with the state attorney general. Opponents of the act claim its unequal treatment of taxpayers is not constitutional.

In addition to requesting a meeting with the attorney general, the commissioners will see if the state is required to file an environmental impact statement before implementing the open space law.

When implemented, the law will reduce tax assessments for eligible property owners who agree not to develop their land holdings.

In other matters, the commissioners approved $900 for the Barrett Friendly Library, $1,000 for the Eastern Pennsylvania Comprehensive Health Planning Board and $1,835.60 for a two-way radio for the sheriff.

A request from the Monroe County Arts Council that county government act as sponsor for $12,834 in arts grants being sought was deferred until investigated by the county solicitor.

An audit report of the Pleasant Valley Manor residents fund was received, showing $50,265.73 in the account.

And Treasurer Robert Coleman reported some $88,500 may be withdrawn from the county retirement account for Pleasant Valley Manor employees because the facility is now run by a non-profit corporation.

ESSC union urges funding for college

EAST STROUDSBURG — Budget-trimming at East Stroudsburg State College to satisfy state orders for a balanced budget is threatening the quality of education, employment and the economy of East Stroudsburg, according to non-faculty employees union president Gerald Smeltz.

Smeltz is president of Local 2366 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

He urged area residents to call and write their state representatives in support of House Bill 1333, which would fund the state college system at a level equal to last year's appropriation.

"All too often community leaders regard the college as the octopus on the hill," Smeltz said. "They should remember we have a pretty big payroll."

Smeltz noted the college is now operating on what he termed a "bare bones budget with no frills at all."

The union sees recent faculty retrenchment as a threat to the quality of education at state colleges.

"Large classes hurt the quality of education," Smeltz said. "This eventually hurts all of us because it lowers the quality of teachers who will educate our children."

Smeltz said besides possible cutbacks of clerical and maintenance personnel, 195 of which are members of his union, faculty cutbacks could lead to cutbacks in student enrollment.

Summer park program works just swimmingly

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Recreation and Park Commission Monday discussed the completion of its summer programs and began planning for fall programs and a 1976 budget.

The final income report for the West End Park swimming pool showed total income for the summer was $1,630.20, $430.20 more than had been estimated in the budget.

Daily admissions to the pool averaged 945. Total admissions for the summer were 5,182. Of these, 2,259 were visits by season pass holders and 2,923 were by daily admission. The pool has 22 family memberships and nine individual memberships.

Executive director Jeffrey M. Evans reported there were 1,848 participant days in the summer program at the West End Park, 1,037 participant days in the First Ward Park and commission staff members directly involved in 18 of the 30 summer sessions at the Saylorburg Playground.

Planning is now underway for recreation programs during the fall at the Pocono Mountain School District and for the first time in the East Stroudsburg Area School District. Evans said meetings with administrators and school boards this month will be conducted to finalize plans.

No programming will be done in the First Ward Park until an ad hoc citizen committee is selected to tell the commission staff what kind of programming is needed there.

A possible new program for the fall may be worked out for Monroe County's senior citizens through the Office of the Aging.

The amount of fall programming will depend to a great extent on the backgrounds of the two new employees hired under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), Evans said.

Evans said two full time employees will be hired and paid with federal funds through this program. They will work from October 6 until April 30.

Applications are now being accepted and interviews will be done by the end of the month.

The Recreation and Park Commission is recommending the county commissioners change its funding procedure for municipality recreation.

This year the commission was given $50,000 to allocate to municipalities. Instead, the commission would rather have its own budget expanded to run programs in some areas. Direct funding to municipalities would be administered differently than this year.

Some commission members said this year the municipipalities seemed to feel that if there was money available, they should come up with something to spend it on.

They said it would be better if the county only funded those municipalities with specific recreation plans. This funding would be judged on a set of priorities to be set up by the commission and would be done on a reimbursable basis.

Evans said Pocono Township still has not spent the $15,000 allocation it received from the county. He noted the commission could benefit from the interest if funds were given to municipalities as reimbursements for monies already spent.

The commission will hold extra meetings to draw up its 1976 budget. An extension has been obtained from the county commissioners of the budget deadline from Oct. 1 to Oct. 15.

BRODHEAD AT PEACE — Natural dams like these along the Brodhead Creek do not afford much protection from flooding. But if there are to be any other kind, it may be costly and Monroe must decide if a flood control project is worth that cost. (Staff photo by Brian Heller)

Report doubts feasibility

Brodhead dam project too costly?

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Commissioners will decide Thursday whether to pursue a 15-year project of structural flood control on the lower Brodhead Creek watershed.

A report released Monday by the commissioners and authored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service concludes it is no longer economically feasible to consider a structural program in the project area.

Land values are increasing faster than the value of damaged properties and roads and bridges account for a large part of the damage suffered in the past. When replaced to withstand higher flood stages, these damages become nonreoccurable, according to the study.

The Monroe County Commissioners and Conservation District first applied for federal assistance to construct a flood control project on the Brodhead below Canadensis in 1960.

The project was made a number one priority with the state Conservation Commission just last January.

Based on the information in the SCS report, Monroe officials may now wish to withdraw that priority rating. According to discussion among the commissioners, however, that priority cannot be shifted to another flood protection project within the county — such as a project along Pocono Creek.

The area in question encompasses 143 square miles or 91,520 acres along Brodhead Creek with 11 tributaries south of Canadensis.

A major flood Aug. 18-19, 1955 took 78 lives and an estimated $17.4 million on property damage along the lower Brodhead, providing impetus for the project application.

Separated into two districts, the project estimates most flood protection could be accomplished by $12.5 million worth of dams in what is designated the "Brodhead Creek Unit" and another $2.7 million for the "Paradise Creek Unit."

If structural protection is too costly, the SCS study sees the most hope in participation by property owners in the National Flood Insurance Program which includes municipal cooperation in managing flood prone areas.

Currently, four of the nine flood prone communities in the watershed are eligible for flood insurance.

The report further suggests local officials initiate a program of educating property owners of the benefits of flood-proofing, relocation, flood plain management and intentional flooding.

It was also noted that existing flood watch and flood warning systems in the watershed are excellent measures for announcing impending flood hazards for early preparedness and mobilization.

Before scratching the hopes of a structural program with dams, dikes and channel work, the commissioners will solicit comment from residents who will be affected.

Harry F. Lee, attorney for Leisuretime, contends in a petition to the court that he began an appeal of a 1973 tax assessment, but that the appeal proceedings have never been legally concluded.

In the petition, Lee states there was negotiation with the Board of Assessment Appeal about the accuracy of construction cost figured in a county assessment which raised the Howard Johnson's property from a $950 land assessment in 1972 to a $467,910 land and building assessment in 1973.

Lee stated he believed his appeal was being considered by the county board when he received notice of a denial in August 1973.

Lee stated that if he had been notified prior to that date, as required by law, he would have been able to file a court appeal of the assessment.

The court has ordered a hearing on the matter for 9:30 a.m. Sept. 30 at which time the Board of Assessment Appeal will be asked to "show cause" why there was not a proper hearing procedure in the matter of Howard Johnson's tax appeal.

paid taxes.

The Monroe County Board of Assessment Appeals and the treasurer claim Howard Johnson's owes $17,734.78 even though the corporation paid $22,648 in back taxes before Aug. 8 to prevent being sold at auction.

STROUDSBURG — Leisuretime Properties, Inc., owners of Howard Johnson Motor Lodge and Restaurant in Delaware Water Gap won a stay of proceedings Monday from Monroe County Court, preventing the county treasurer from selling the motor lodge for unpaid taxes.

School can't resist dat ole time religion

EAST STROUDSBURG — You can't preach religion in public schools, but you can sing about it.

That's what the East Stroudsburg Area School Board found out last month when a religious group asked to use school facilities for a rally and religious instruction.

The request by the Calvary Bible Church, Franklin Hill, East Stroudsburg had to be turned down at the board's Aug. 18 meeting because the Pennsylvania School Code prohibits the use of school facilities for religious instruction.

After the meeting, the church resubmitted its request to use the high school's auditorium for a Christmas choral concert on Dec. 7. The board granted the request this month.

District officials are also eyeing another possible concert sometime in February.

The district is vying for a grant from Pennsylvania Council on the Arts to partially pay for a concert by the Northeastern Pennsylvania Philharmonic Orchestra. The grant is expected to pay for half the $5,000 the district estimates the orchestra will cost.

asked the codes officer to send him the application and bill him for the permit fee.

Melvin explained DeRenzis had asked them to mail the permit to him and then be billed for the fee.

Melvin said it is common practice for the codes office to mail quantities of applications to contractors who do a lot of work in the two boroughs, so the forms can be filled out in the contractor's spare time.

He added that he offered DeRenzis some application forms to take back to his office, but that they were refused.

The codes officer explained DeRenzis' complaints stemmed from two incidents in late August when the codes office found DeRenzis working without a permit.

In the first incident, according to Melvin, DeRenzis was told to come in and pick up an application form for a permit and did so.

The second incident occurred the following day. Melvin said DeRenzis claimed it had slipped his mind to get an application for the job the day before when he was in the codes office.

Melvin told him to come in and pick up a form that afternoon, but DeRenzis declined, saying he would come Monday morning.

When Monday came, DeRenzis called saying he couldn't make it because he was waiting for a customer.

DeRenzis had complained to council that Melvin was preventing him from doing his business by insisting that he appear at the specified time that day.

Melvin said DeRenzis had been treated leniently, but since it was the second violation in two days and DeRenzis had made rude remarks and insisted he could not be bothered, Melvin decided to issue a citation.

When codes officer Walter Doyle went to deliver the citation at DeRenzis' office, Melvin said, the secretary refused to accept it.

District Magistrate Graden Praetorius was also unable to

School articles may change

Vo-Tech grad students possible

BARTONSVILLE — Local high school graduates who want to attend the Monroe County Area Vocational-Technical School days to further their education cannot at the moment. But the school's Joint Operating Committee took a step toward changing that Monday night.

Vo-Tech Director Alan K. Cohen told the committee a graduate of any of the county's four high schools can return to that school for post-graduate education.

But the same graduate cannot attend Vo-Tech — an extension of all four county school districts — because of a stipulation in the Vo-Tech articles of agreement, Cohen said. Vo-Tech solicitor Samuel W. Newman told him.

Cohen said he would like the articles amended to allow post-graduates to attend Vo-Tech only if there is an opening. He said three shops do not have their quota of students from the four districts, and promised post-graduates would not replace regular students.

Each of the four school district boards of education must approve the amendment before the articles can be changed, he explained.

The committee gave Cohen the go-ahead to draft a resolution to change the articles. Voting against the motion were committee members John Kerrick, representing the Pocono Mountain School Board, and John H. Parker, representing the Stroudsburg Area School Board.

In other business, the committee gave its approval to purchase $19,023 in equipment and supplies for a pre-vocational program, new this year.

One-half the $18,224 in equipment will be paid by the federal government, while the government will pick up the tab on all the $799 worth of supplies.

John D. Wilgeroth, Vo-Tech pupil services coordinator, credited the fledgling program with keeping three students in Vo-Tech who probably would have dropped out because of frustration.

The program is for students who have eye-hand coordination and other difficulties. The equipment includes power saws, screwdrivers and sanders.

In further business, the committee approved a request by Peter Lambert, committee member from Pleasant Valley, and Donald Seiple, Vo-Tech evening school coordinator, to attend a one-week American Vocational Assn. Convention in Anaheim, Calif.

Hamilton planner's status remains in twilight zone

West End Bureau

SCIOTA — For the second straight time, two of the Hamilton Township supervisors have refused to reappoint a planning commission member to a second term; the planner is the same man supervisors named to the commission in May to fill an unexpired term.

James Bradley, of Bartonsville, was named to the seven-member commission at the supervisors' May 12 meeting to serve out the unexpired term of Elmer Kiefer, who moved from the area. Technically his term expired August 31.

When the situation was called to the attention of supervisors at their meeting Monday, by planners chairman Ray Kress, supervisors Robert Field was quick to make a motion for reappointment.

Neither Ray Mackes nor fellow supervisor Loren Fenner would second the motion. It died.

Both Mackes and Fenner delayed reappointment of former planner Val Robbins in August and September of 1974. They ultimately offered to appoint Robbins to the board, but he refused the appointment after the two-month stall.

Fields tried his best to encourage the supervisors to second his motion, stating the full planning commission should be present at the upcoming zoning hearing Wednesday.

He called the situation embarrassing for the township when the supervisors refused to reappoint planners who had done a good job. He pointed out Mackes and Fenner, just three months ago, had appointed Bradley to the board.

"I was never introduced to the man and I won't second the motion," said Fenner, and the issue died.

Kress said he was shocked at the lack of action and described Bradley as a diligent planner who had attended every meeting since his appointment. He said he was embarrassed by the action and surprised Mackes and Fenner took the stand they did.

In other business, supervisors decided to reconsider adopting federal flood insurance for the township after Fields said he obtained an extension on the filing period from Washington. The opportunity to file had expired for Hamilton Township, but the municipality will now have until November 22 to apply.

Fields said he was urging the action again because the Old Mill in Sciota needed federal flood insurance in order to receive government funding and because he was concerned about people not being able to get federally insured mortgages in the future if the township did not apply for the insurance.

This matter also nearly died for lack of a second, but Fenner eventually proposed a special meeting he had on the issue. It will be the second special meeting supervisors have held on flood insurance to be called by Fenner and Mackes. No meeting date was set.

Presidential hopeful speaks at Buck Hill

BUCK HILL FALLS — Jimmy Carter, presidential candidate, is against forced busing and for New York City finding its own way out of its financial troubles.

The former governor of Georgia (1970-74) stopped briefly in Pennsylvania Monday night to talk to the New York State Publishers Assn. meeting in Pennsylvania.

The two-state operation involved in Monday's appearance didn't add to the bases that Carter has touched in the two years he admits to running for the presidency.

"I've been in 47 states (excluding Montana and the Dakotas)," he said, "and 11 foreign countries. And I expect to be back visiting personally with as many of you and your editorial boards as possible."

In his 25-minute talk to the 100 publishers at Buck Hill, Carter emphasized his faith in the American people with the hope that similar strength could be regained by American government.

In response to later questions he admitted he could see no answer for New York City's financial problems. "I don't know the answer, but I suspect a legal decision will force the state to assume some responsibility."

Regarding school integration, Carter said that forced busing is not the answer.

"If I were President, I would be obligated to uphold judicial decisions," he said, but he pointed out that a system where those most concerned — the militant blacks and other community leaders — agreed to negotiate at the local level held the most promise. "It came late but it has worked in Atlanta," he said.

On politics, Carter would not pick a Democratic front runner. Senator Henry Jackson, he said, has "washed out" but he suggested that Sen. Hubert Humphrey, whom many consider the most likely candidate, would not enter any primaries but would be available (and a favorite) at the New York City convention.

Police blotter

Eburg man faces theft charges

EAST STROUDSBURG — State police Monday arrested an East Stroudsburg man and charged him with stealing a canoe from a Pike County development sometime between June 15 and July 4.

Guy Todd Maroriello, 19, of 250 Brodhead Ave., was apprehended at his residence by two troopers from the Milford substation. He allegedly took a canoe from Alfred P. Sherwood, who owns a home at Pocono Mountains Lake Estates, Lehman Township.

Appearing first before District Magistrate Eleanor Randolph of East Stroudsburg and unable to post $2,500 bail, Maroriello was later arraigned in front of District Magistrate George Hattley Sr. in Milford. He was remanded to the Pike County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bail and will have a preliminary hearing Wednesday, Sept. 17.

Missing youth sought

CANADENSIS — State police are seeking information that might lead them to the whereabouts of 16-year-old John Edwin Hay of Canadensis.

According to state police at Milford, Hay, who lives at Skytop Road, Canadensis, Pike County, has been missing since Monday, September 1 when he walked away from home.

The youth, a police spokesman said, is under psychiatric care and was last seen walking north on Rte. 390. He was wearing checkered slacks and a long-sleeved, green shirt.

Any person with information about the thin, fair-complexioned youth with dark blonde hair should call state police at Milford at 296-6451, the spokesman said.

Mount Pocono youth arrested

MOUNT POCONO — An 18-year-old Mount Pocono youth was arrested Monday by state police from Swiftwater and charged with receiving stolen property.

Andrew M. Newhart was arraigned before District Magistrate Clara Pope and released on nominal bail. He is charged with receiving a stolen citizen's band radio on August 29 and another CB radio again Monday.

The youth, arrested by Tpr. Robert Werts, will have a preliminary hearing at 10:30 a.m., Thursday, Sept. 18.

Police arrest three men at rest area

BARTONSVILLE — State police have arrested three more men at the trouble-plagued Interstate 80 rest stop two miles west of Bartonsville.

Cpl. Louis Blaum of the state police at Swiftwater Sunday night arrested Michael G. Adamski, 29, of Norristown; John H. Kistler, 22, of Lehighton R.D. 3 and James O. Bardfield of Norristown. They were charged with loitering past the state's two hour limit at the eastbound rest area.

Joint codes office defends enforcement

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg Joint Codes Enforcement Officer Stanley Melvin Monday cleared himself of the charges leveled against him and his office by a Stroudsburg aluminum contractor at the Sept. 3 borough council meeting.

Melvin was requested to appear before a special meeting of the Stroudsburg Codes Committee by council to explain his side of a series of events contractor Joseph DeRenzis of 21 N. Ninth St. called harsh execution of the codes.

DeRenzis complained to council he had to spend an hour and a half to two hours in the codes office every time he needed a permit.

The contractor said he had asked the codes officer to send him the application and bill him for the permit fee.

Melvin explained DeRenzis had asked them to mail the permit to him and then be billed for the fee.

Melvin said it is common practice for the codes office to mail quantities of applications to contractors who do a lot of work in the two boroughs, so the forms can be filled out in the contractor's spare time.

He added that he offered DeRenzis some application forms to take back to his office, but that they were refused.

The codes officer explained DeRenzis' complaints stemmed from two incidents in

Long-Hamlen 'Highland' champs

POCONO MANOR — Paul E. Long and East Stroudsburg High School golfer George Hamlen combined to fire a two-day total of 145 this weekend and win the two-day Highland Inn Open fall golf tournament at Pocono Manor.

Long and Hamlen scored a one-under 71 Saturday on the tough West course and added a 74 Sunday on the East course to finish a shot ahead of runners-up Paul McGowan and Paul Wise.

Cliff Shoemaker and Clair Metzgar won the low net title with a 36-hole score of 140. Doug Hilliard and Bill McAllister were second a stroke behind at 141.

Don Metzgar and Wayne Metzgar were third in the gross category with a 146 total. Horace Johnson and Frank Kristoff finished fourth at 147, just two shots behind Long and Hamlen.

Rounding out the top four in the net category were

Johnson, Bergen replace Kozlosky, Polinski

Frosh move into key ESSC spots

Special to The Record
EAST STROUDSBURG — Two freshmen will be East Stroudsburg State College's football replacements for two graduated All-Pennsylvania Conference players.

Newcomers Jeff Johnson of Morrisville and Bill Bergen of Seaford, N.Y., have gained probable starting positions for the Warriors for Saturday's season opener at Slippery Rock. Game-time will be 1:30 p.m.

Johnson will open at inside linebacker, a position at which Tom Kozlosky operated last season. Kozlosky set a school record with 18.2 tackles per game and earned Little All-America third team honors.

Bergen is set to replace Tom Polinski of East Stroudsburg at defensive end. Polinski played in 32 straight games for ESSC over a four-year period.

"Both these freshmen are fine athletes and have the potential to be super players for us," said ESSC Coach Denny Douds.

Although a freshman, Johnson has more football experience than the average student entering college. The 6-1, 215-pound youngster was captain of the football team last year at Massanutten Academy, a preparatory school in Virginia.

He graduated from Morrisville High School in 1974 after gaining All-County mention as a fullback and linebacker three straight years. He was an All-

State third team selection.

Johnson's greatest honor came in the summer of 1974 when he was chosen as the most valuable player in the Bucks County All-Star Game.

Bergen is one of the large contingent of Long Island residents on the ESSC team. There are 12 Long Islanders at present on the varsity squad including three transfer students from Nassau County Community College.

The 6-1, 210-pound end was voted as one of the top 44 football players on the Island last season. He was picked on the All-Division and All-County teams and won the Seaford High School senior football award.

A versatile athlete, Bergen was a division champion and three-year letterman in wrestling and was a shot putter and discus thrower for the track and field team. He was named the school's Athlete of the Year.

Although Johnson and Bergen are the only freshmen starting at present, Coach Douds indicated that there are other newcomers who have the potential to gain varsity playing time this season.

WHA ready to abandon Orr hopes
ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — The Minnesota Fighting Saints and the World Hockey Association Monday virtually lost all hope for a chance to sign superstar Bobby Orr of the Boston Bruins.

Saints president Wayne Besile said he expected Orr would sign with the new Boston owners today or Wednesday for a 10-year contract in the $5-6 million range.

He said Orr's attorney Alan Eagleson reported the hockey great has a clause in his contract stipulating "he is free if the sale isn't completed." That depended on the breakdown of a purchase offer of the Bruins by Jeremy, Max and Lawrence Jacobs of Buffalo, N.Y.

Connors resembles Ali as champ without title

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors, having lost his U.S. Open tennis title, now finds himself in the position Muhammad Ali was in before he regained the heavyweight championship—the most talked about player without a major victory during the year.

Connors was soft-balled to defeat Sunday on the gray clay of the West Side Tennis Club by quiet spoken Manuel Orantes of Spain, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3, and now his name is missing from the major championship role following his finals defeats earlier in the Australian Open, to John Newcombe, and at Wimbledon, to Arthur Ashe.

But the question being asked today is: who will meet Connors at Las Vegas in a $250,000 challenge match set for next February?

Plunkett undergoes surgery

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — New England Patriots quarterback Jim Plunkett will undergo surgery Tuesday at Stanford University Hospital in California to repair the left shoulder he separated in Sunday's exhibition game against the San Diego Chargers, a club spokesman said Monday.

Plunkett, 27, a former Heisman Trophy winner and All-America at Stanford now in his fifth season with the Patriots, was expected to be sidelined for at least three weeks, the spokesman said.

Until the injury, Plunkett had played in 81 consecutive exhibition and regular season games since breaking into the Patriots lineup in 1971.

Dr. Fred Behling, who has previously operated on Plunkett's injured knees, will perform the shoulder surgery, the spokesman said.

Plunkett, 6-2, 210 pounds, dislocated his left shoulder in the second quarter of Sunday's 31-24 victory over the Chargers when San Diego defensive end Coy Bacon landed on him, forcing Plunkett to fumble the ball. Defensive tackle Gary Johnson scooped up the ball and ran 11 yards for a touchdown.

The spokesman said Plunkett elected to undergo surgery after doctors told him his shoulder would heal quicker than it would through rest.

"It was left up to Jim and he decided to go ahead with the surgery," the spokesman said.

Shula faces tough decision

MIAMI (UPI) — Miami Dolphins' coach Don Shula said Monday he is considering placing linebacker Nick Buoniconti and safety Dick Anderson on the injured reserve list, which would make them ineligible for the season.

Shula said, however, that he did not have to make a decision until 4 p.m. today, when the Dolphins will have to cut five players from their current roster of 51.

Buoniconti broke his thumb in an exhibition game and will be out of action for at least six weeks. Anderson reinjured the same knee he hurt in the 1975 Pro Bowl game and must sit out six to eight weeks waiting for cartilage damage to heal.

"You'd like to have a healthy Nick and a healthy Anderson, but since neither is healthy, I'm faced with making a decision," Shula said.

When asked if he was thinking about placing the two all-pro performers on the injured reserve list, Shula replied, "Possibly."

Retain limit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of the National Football League Players Association Monday asked the NFL owners to maintain the 47-man squad limit for the 1975 season because of the number of "serious injuries" to first line players this year.

Kermit Alexander asked the owners to reverse their decision before today's player cuts, which will reduce NFL squads to 46. Three more players must be cut next week to reach the 43-man squad limit the owners adopted this year.

Connors' handlers, apparently unconcerned that Connors is an ex-champion, talk about his challenge coming from Ashe, Orantes, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, or French open winner Bjorn Borg, the teenager he defeated in the semifinals at Forest Hills.

You'll recall that Muhammad Ali acted as though he was the champion during the reigns of Joe Frazier and George Foreman before he regained the championship from Foreman last October in Zaire.

Orantes, however, is not about to challenge Connors. "He'll have to challenge me," said the 26-year-old Spaniard. He also noted he had won the national championships of Germany, Sweden, Canada and the British and U.S. clay court titles during the last five months.

Because Orantes is such a quietly spoken individual, a man who does not seek headlines, his victories have gone almost unnoticed. But he is a proud man and proud to be a tennis professional. He does not concede defeat until the final ball has been hit. Vilas can attest to this.

In the semifinals Saturday, with the hour nearing midnight and with Connors tucked in bed, Orantes came back from a 2-1 deficit in sets and 5-0, five match points, in the fourth to record a memorable five-set victory over Vilas which took him 3 hours 44 minutes to complete.

He was given little chance in the final, yet in 1 hour, 57 minutes Connors was the ex-champion. Connors' raw power had been blunted with a mixture of exquisite lobs, drop shots and soft balls. It was brain over brawn. Chris Evert, the lady champion, came to cheer Connors, but she must have been impressed at the way Orantes refused to leave the baseline. Chris was given a demonstration of her own game in live action!

But there was no victory party. After the applause had died and the 15,669 fans had left the stadium, Orantes had a quiet dinner with his wife, Virginia, and a close friend.

Then it was back to his hotel to savor his victory. "It was difficult to go to sleep. We were both too excited," said Orantes.

Manuel Santana, the first Spaniard to win the title, in 1965, when he defeated Cliff Drysdale, will now have to think of a new name for Orantes. "Manolito — Little Manolo," will no longer do. Orantes may be small, just 5 feet, 9½ inches and 161-pounds, but now he's proved he can win the big one, and with much of the world's play on clay, he could be around for a long time.

Orantes said he decided to soft-ball Connors, "because I knew he was not consistent against slow returns and because he can't play from the baseline. He has to come in, and I planned to pass him when he did."

And that's exactly what Orantes did—pass Connors on both wings. When Connors was trapped in mid-court, a lob sailed over his head. It was almost too easy.

Buckeyes' Hayes quiet over recruiting charges

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State football Coach Woody Hayes, saying he was abiding by a request from the president of Michigan State University, declined to comment Monday on whether he was responsible for the NCAA investigation of alleged recruiting violations against the Spartans.

"I won't deny the charges nor will I confirm them," Hayes said. "I don't think I have to. I'm not the one on trial, you know. We've been asked by President (Clifton R.) Wharton of Michigan State not to say anything about it and we are honoring that request."

However, NCAA executive director Walter Byers came to Hayes' defense, releasing a statement which said the information which prompted the Michigan State inquiry "came from a newspaper source and three other members of this association."

"Ohio State has only performed its duties as a member in cooperating with our investigators. We contacted them in the process of our investigation."

"There is nothing more to say except that Ohio State did not do the turning in," Dave Cawood, assistant to Byers, said Monday in a telephone conversation.

Cawood said Byers statement concerning the investigation was "highly irregular," noting that the NCAA usually makes no comments on pending investigations.

"One of the reasons Mr. Byers made the statement was because the game Saturday is going to be highly emotional," Cawood said. "It's a shame so much misinformation has come out about Ohio State because that could be pretty hairy up there."

Michigan State defeated Ohio State, 16-13, last year in a nationally televised game which ended in a cloud of confusion and both teams claiming victory.

Michigan State put out a press release this week which said in part: "Buckeye Coach Woody Hayes has been blamed for bringing charges of recruiting violations against Michigan State which resulted in an NCAA investigation. These charges he has never denied." The Spartans have been charged with numerous recruiting violations. The investigation into the MSU allegations has been in process about a year.

Cawood said it is not uncommon for such investigations to last a year or more, explaining that after the NCAA's confidential report is submitted to the institution, the school can then make its own investigation.

As long as it shows good faith, Cawood said, a school can take all the time it needs to complete its investigation.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the NCAA's Committee on Infractions is in October.

ABA Nets deal Paultz to Spurs

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Nets Monday traded center Billy Paultz to the San Antonio Spurs for four players, including 6-foot-8 forward Rich Jones.

Paultz was made expendable three months ago when the Nets swung an initial deal with San Antonio to land 7-1 center Sven Nater in exchange for forward Larry Kenon. Reserve guard Mike Gale was also shipped to the Spurs as part of the deal.

Jones was considered the key to the deal for he is expected to provide some rebounding balance for Julius Erving, New York's perennial all star at the other forward.

The 28-year-old Jones has spent six years with the San Antonio franchise, playing with the club through two name changes when it represented Dallas. He averaged 16.5 points per game last year and 8.0 rebounds.

Also acquired in the deal by the Nets were 6-11 center Kim Hughes, who played in Italy last year, 6-6 forward Chuck Terry and 6-5 guard Bob Warren. Paultz, 27, has been with the Nets five years and averaged 15.5 points and 11.2 rebounds per game. The 6-11, 240-pound pivot played his college ball at St. Johns and has been named to the ABA all star team three times.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Fine influences! Enterprise, resourcefulness and initiative should spark the day and give you a brand new outlook on all activities.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Some unforeseen situations in business matters. Beware of instability, overemotionalism. Consult with others as to the best way of getting back on the track.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — You should be able to move ahead more optimistically now. Involvement with someone who has been draining all your resources lately seems to be ending.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Day calls for your best judgment. You may feel "lukewarm" about some suggestions made, but look into them anyway. They COULD prove of value.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Don't split hairs when it comes to making important moves or decisions. Neither so diversify your activities that you accomplish tellingly in none.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Excellent planetary influences. Indications are that something very pleasant is about to happen. You should be in fine spirits now, inspired on all fronts.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Distant interests take the spotlight. You may now be able to take the trip that was postponed or you may hear some excellent news from afar.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — Even if balked in a certain plan, don't let yourself be pushed into a corner. Have alternatives ready. You are good at improvisation.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) Your morale should get a boost now. Some new light is shed on old problems and you find more persons responding to your efforts. A brighter outlook indicated.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Seeking an easy solution to a complex problem may only compound the complications. Face up to it, tackle it as you should, there'll be no sorry aftermath.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — You may have to look "behind the scenes" for the answer you're seeking. Some are not telling all they know but even though they may be highly motivated, you SHOULD know the whole story.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Mixed influences. Some things you took for granted are apt to be otherwise but, through the good offices of an interested friend, you can obtain a desired goal.

Other side of story

North dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 NT
Opening lead — three of hearts.
There are frequently two sides to a story. For example, consider this deal where West led a heart, won in dummy with the ten. Declarer could not be sure at this point how he would eventually fare — he was of course unaware that the spades were divided 3-3 — and he elected to return a heart to his king at trick two.
West won with the ace and shifted to a low club. East took the ace and returned the nine. West winning declarer's queen with the king. West now made the excellent play of the jack of spades, forcing declarer to win in dummy and eventually lose two diamond tricks to go down one.

Good defense, you might say, but the fact is that that's only one side of the story. Let's go back to the point where South muffed his chance to make the contract. Instead of returning a heart from dummy at trick two, he should have cashed the A-K-Q of spades, discarding two clubs from his hand, and then played a heart to the king.
West wins the heart with the ace but the defenders soon run out of steam. They can cash two club tricks, but the best they can do next is to have West lead a low diamond. South ducks in dummy and East, after winning with the queen, has no place to go.
The big difference in the play is that declarer, by first cashing the A-K-Q of spades, destroys West's ability to exit with a spade when he later wins the ace of hearts. In effect, declarer removes West's fangs by cashing three spade tricks before exiting with a heart.
That's the other side of the story.

SHOPLIFTING

Nobody has any patience with shoplifting anymore. It isn't a prank. It isn't a lark. It isn't a joke. It's a crime ...a crime that's responsible for the loss of more than $3 billion worth of retail merchandise every year. If you're caught shoplifting, stores will press charges. If you're convicted, it could mean a seven-year prison term, a $2,000 fine or both. Plus the end of a lot of dreams: an applicant with a police record is barred from most schools and many professions. One mistake can haunt you for the rest of your life. Isn't that a big price to pay for stealing from a store on a dare? Grow up...and grow responsible! Remember, shoplifting hurts everyone. All of us pay a higher markup to cover loss and security costs.

What's cost of a seagull? Crucial issue for oil deals

By G. CHRISTIAN HILL
Dow Jones-Offaway News
LOS ANGELES — Economist Walter Mead, addressing an offshore-oil conference, is discussing the "social cost" of the 1969 Santa Barbara oil spill. He quickly arrives at a knotty question: What is the cost, in dollars and cents, of one dead sea gull?

Taking a lunge at it, he puts the figure between $1 and $10. "I don't think anyone would say they have a value of more than $10 a bird," he reasons. But he hasn't asked environmentalists.

Mead, who lives in Santa Barbara himself and has nothing against birds, says he was only trying to bring rationality to a debate that, in his view, has grown overly emotional and has strayed far from what he sees as the central question: Do the potential benefits of increased offshore drilling outweigh its risks and disadvantages?

It is a crucial question as the Department of the Interior moves closer to the sale of leases on huge blocks of federally controlled offshore waters, many of them in areas that have never been drilled before.

The department and the oil industry says that greatly accelerated offshore drilling is vital if the U.S. is to lessen its dependence on Middle East oil.

Environmentalists and their allies tend to view the projected lease sales as a wretched excess, a potential polluter on a grand scale, and an unwarranted giveaway to the oil industry.

While environmental issues get the headlines, other issues have arisen. Would it be wiser to go more slowly on offshore oil production and step up imports for now? Will the accelerated program mean lower bids for federal leases, costing the taxpayers billions? How much oil is out there anyway?

The accelerated leasing program is one of the most sweeping and rapid resource-development plans ever put forward. By 1978, the government plans to sell leases on 20 million to 30 million offshore acres, more than twice the total leased in the previous 20 years. This year alone, it plans to lease 4 million to 5 million acres.

Pollution statistics evasive

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — There's a major stumbling block in the fight against environmental pollution: scientists can't agree on how much is harmless and how much is dangerous.

It's even hard to find agreement on how much pollution is in the air, water and soil.

The problem is two-fold — some people can absorb high levels of hazardous elements, such as lead, and show no ill effects, while others are poisoned at much lower levels. And a person whose blood is tested for lead is likely to be given different results depending on who makes the test.

Dr. James Pierce, director of the University of Missouri Environmental Trace Substances Center, said the problem of inconsistent results is well-known to analytical chemists but not to the public. Different laboratories analyzing the same material come up with different answers.

"The situation is the same for any element being analyzed," Pierce said. "We're on solid ground with the inorganic samples we analyze, but biological samples contain so many substances that their complexity masks our ability to analyze them accurately."

Pierce said chemists are working hard to find the source of error in their analysis of biological samples, but he said one problem has been the government's unwillingness to pay for such research.

"Every time such a proposal is submitted, the feds reject it — 'pedestrian,' they say — not real research," Pierce said. "But it's fundamental research, in my opinion. Some major progress is being blocked until this problem's solved."

Pierce said the lack of consistency in analyzing samples is making government pollution standards meaningless, especially considering the varied response people show to environmental poisons.

Across the nation, the counties of Nassau and Suffolk on New York's Long Island, joined by several municipalities, already have sued the Interior Department to try to block the proposed August 1976 lease sale off New England's coast. It is probable that Alaska and some northeast states, as well as California, will also go to court.

But the opposition clearly has begun to soften, partly because of the recession. Polls suggest growing support for drilling in the Atlantic.

Union and some governmental officials, both municipal and state and including the mayor of Atlantic City, N.J. have begun to cautiously endorse Atlantic drilling, particularly if it would bring new jobs and new energy supplies to areas largely dependent on foreign oil for fuel. Often such prospects more than offset the fears of drilling damage.

One of the major fears of coastal states and communities is a massive oilspill resulting in permanent ecological harm. There is evidence, however, that offshore drilling is far safer environmentally than shipping growing quantities of foreign oil into the U.S. by tanker.

The National Academy of Sciences estimates that of all the ocean pollution from the release of oil and other petroleum substances, only 1.3 per cent comes from oil drilling.

By contrast, according to the academy, tanker operations are a major source of pollution. Dumping the discharge of waste fuel, and accident during the loading and unloading of cargo account for 35 per cent. And tankers often carry refined oil, more toxic to marine life than crude.

Environmentalists generally concede that tankers do more damage to the marine environment than offshore drilling does, right now. But they say acceleration of offshore development would sharply increase drilling's threat to the point where it would be at least as dangerous to the environment as increased tanker traffic would be.

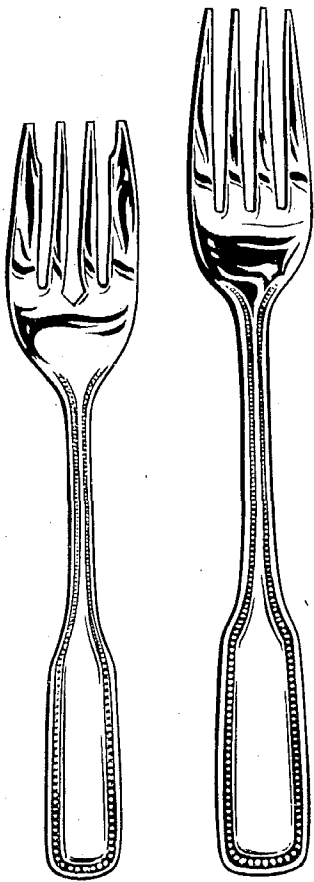

Harvard economist Robert Dorfman has tentatively estimated that offshore development will, in the end, net the oil industry and the government roughly $200 billion above environmental and extraction costs.

Estimates on potential offshore-oil production range as high as 3 million to 4 million barrels a day, or 18 per cent to 24 per cent of today's total domestic oil consumption of 16.5 million barrels a day. The U.S. now imports 6 million barrels a day.

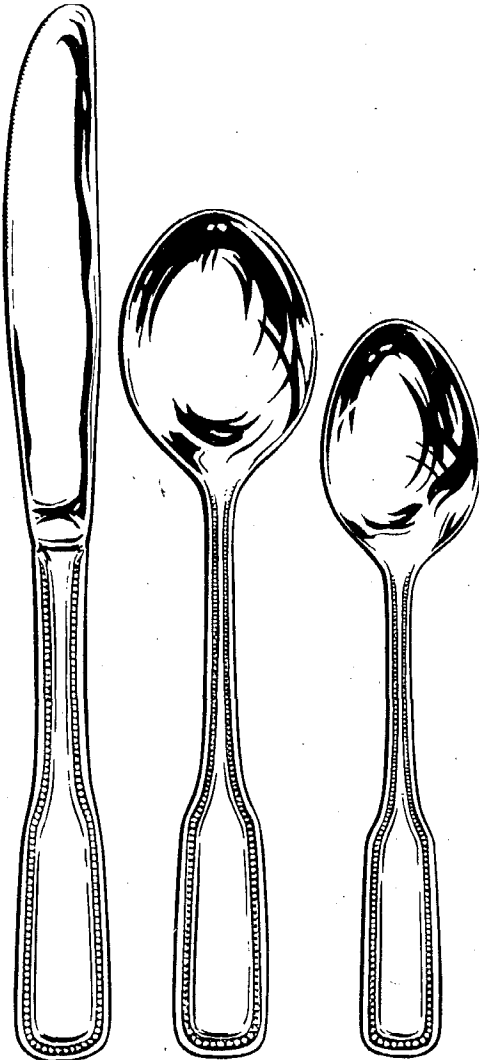

CAMERA HOG! — Christopher Adam Powell needs no lessons on how to steal the center stage, but he could use a few pointers on etiquette and chivalry as he shoves a hand in the face of Jennifer Thomas as photographer tries to portray them as winners of a baby contest at a Covington, Ky., county fair. (UPI)
